FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

The Air National Guard

BY MAJ. GEN. EARL T. RICKS
Deputy Chief, National Guard Bureau

TODAY, with all its tactical units back from active military service with the U. S. Air Force during the Korean War, the Air National Guard is a wide-awake, rapidly expanding fighting force seriously training for its mission as a first-line member of the American military team with an "M" Day assignment.

Maj. Gen. Ricks

Air Guard leaders, proud of its record during the Korean emergency, are working hard to bring the organization to the state of training, strength and readiness required by the expanded defense responsibilities assigned to the Air National Guard.

The Air Guard today is back in full organizational swing with 87 tactical squadrons in 27 Wings strategically located throughout the United States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Alaska.

Air units attached to ground units of the National Guard have been in existence since 1916. But the Air National Guard, as a separate tactical organization came into existence in 1946 when the first unit was organized.

Just four years later when the Communist aggression exploded in Korea there were 601 Federally recognized units and 44,974 Air Guardsmen prepared and eager to answer the call. This rapid growth to a strong, respected fighting force was a planned development, aided and supported by the United States Air Force and the Congress.

The Air National Guard was called upon to make major and vitally needed contributions to the national effort against Korean aggression. Approximately 80 per cent of the Air Guard was ordered into active military service with the Air Force—22 of the ANG's 27 Wings. Included were 486 combat and support units and 45,594 trained officers and airmen from a total strength at that time of 57,000. It is a tribute to our nation that 12,000 men joined the Air National Guard after these units were alerted for active service.

In addition to units and personnel the Air Guard provided the Regular Air Force with vital and critical military maintenance and organizational equipment, including the planes of 19 jet-equipped Air Guard fighter squadrons.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

July 27, 1953

Dear Mr. Whitman:

My congratulations go to you and the staff of the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal on the ninetieth anniversary of its establishment.

Throughout this long span of years the Journal has been more than a constant source of strength and encouragement for members of the Armed Services. It has also served no less well the entire Nation by its unflinching advocacy of adequate provisions for our security.

With all best wishes for continued success in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

Mr. LeRoy Whitman

Manpower Cutbacks Face Upward Shift

Armed Forces manpower between now and next 1 July will be cut less drastically than was indicated in Defense Department estimates presented during Capitol Hill budget hearings. As a result, there may be fewer officer and enlisted force-outs than previously forecast.

A supplemental appropriations request is not out of the question, despite the obvious deterrent of the current touch-and-go situation on the National Debt ceiling.

The forthcoming conclusions of the Joint Chiefs of Staff following their overall look at the defense picture will carry heavy influence. It is believed certain the JCS will ask higher manpower totals than those in the '54 budget.

The original 1954 defense appropriations estimates, submitted by the Truman Administration, forecast a fiscal year-end strength next 30 June of 3,647,612 for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

When the Eisenhower Administration took over, these estimates were discarded. A new year-end objective of 3,356,000 was set, with Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson reporting to Congressional Appropriations Committees that there would be a further reduction to 3,300,000 "if hostilities cease in Korea."

Notwithstanding the fact that hostilities in Korea have ceased, there is now no likelihood that the maximum economy objective of 3,300,000 will be attained by next 1 July.

Furthermore, there is much reason to believe that the Armed Forces may complete the current fiscal year with more men than the 3,356,000 asked by Secretary Wilson.

Manpower reduction estimates, which had to be made hastily before cognizant civilian officials were able to learn the full impact and ramifications of economy cutbacks, apparently may backfire and force modification of previously imposed targets.

The whole matter of military strength and the inseparable problem of dollar costs are under new review at the highest levels of the Pentagon and Bureau of the Budget.

Critically important to this review will be recommendations Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah, manpower and personnel chief, will make upon his

JCS Chief Says Attractiveness "Toughest Problem"

The new Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said this week that the toughest problem confronting the Armed Forces is to attract and retain outstanding junior officers and non-commissioned officers.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford made it plain it will be his business and that of the other members of the JCS to improve the situation of those in service and their families.

Admiral Radford's remarks were made at his first Pentagon press conference since taking office as JCS Chairman.

Particularly significant insofar as Ad-

Research Vital to Power, Says Asst. Air Sec. Lewis

Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, Roger Lewis, told the Air Force Association convention recently that we are entering into an era in which a partially mobilized economy may almost be considered a "new kind of normalcy."

In a speech before the Second Annual Airpower Symposium, Secretary Lewis declared that it is a matter of great concern to those responsible for the production of materiel and the research and development program, to adjust the sights of the American people to this new focus of things.

"It is trite to say but important to remember always that research and development is essential to, and inseparable from, predominant air power," he said.

He stated that the problems of planning and financing research and development have become so enormous and complicated that research goals "sometimes become blurred and distorted by such seemingly unrelated things as funding, appropriations, commitments, mobilization plans and so forth."

Marine Corps Adopts New Release Policy

The Marine Corps has adopted a new policy which will permit immediate release from active duty of certain of its Reserve officers.

Those who may request release under the new regulation are Reserve officers who were serving on active duty under a voluntary extension agreement in the grades of major or above as of 1 July 1953.

Also included are captains who were selected for major prior to 1 July, but not actually promoted by that date. At the same time, Headquarters said it has adopted a "less liberal" policy in granting extensions of EAD tours for Reserve officers beyond 30 June 1955.

In general, such extensions will be restricted to (1) officers holding critical MOS's such as lawyers, naval aviators, electronics personnel; and (2) a small number of officers on active duty with the Reserve program.

With the exception of officers in the above categories, extensions normally will be approved for only a one year period. Details are contained in Marine Corps Memorandum No. 57.

Admitted to Bar

Nathaniel C. Kenyon, son of Brig. Gen. H. N. Kenyon (Ret.), was among the successful candidates for admission to the bar in the District of Columbia as announced by the Board of Law Examiners.

IX CORPS IN KOREA—Retiring IX Corps Commander Lt. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins (left), greets his successor Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey at IX Corps Headquarters. General Hickey assumed command of IX Corps while General Jenkins moved to X Corps where he will succeed Lt. Gen. I. D. White as Commanding General of X Corps.

For Involuntary Release

An Air Force board this week swung into the job of reviewing records of some 4,000 additional officers who face forced release from active duty.

The board will screen records of non-critical officers and will recommend officer for involuntary release.

Major commanders will have an opportunity to protest the forced release of any officer, but must be prepared to submit a substitute name.

The Air Force is confronted with the problem of losing thousands of officers, voluntarily and involuntarily, to get within reduced manpower ceilings and to make spaces for thousands of ROTC graduates coming on active duty during the current fiscal year.

Officers who are forced out are being given 60 days notification, Air Force officials said.

Meantime, it was learned this week that of the first 6,592 non-Regular officers already picked for involuntary release, a surprising number are rated officers. This group is reported to include some 2,178 pilots.

Latest estimates are that the Air Force must lose 15,000 officers who want to stay on active duty during fiscal '54.

New efforts are being made, however, to gain Pentagon approval for a reduction in this number.

Additionally, about 35,000 airmen scheduled for release from duty in fiscal year 1955 probably will be dropped, voluntarily or involuntarily, during the current fiscal year.

Gen. Gillmore to Thailand; Relieved By Gen. Pierson

Maj. Gen. William Nelson Gillmore, USA, has been named as Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Thailand.

The Defense Department said the appointment of General Gillmore was made "in response to a request from the Thai Government" that a general officer be named to head the MAA Group there. General Gillmore departed for his new post on 24 Aug.

Col. Davis Remains

He will succeed Col. John W. Davis who has headed the Group since June. Colonel Davis will remain as Deputy Chief.

With the assignment of General Gillmore, all MAAGs in the Far East are now headed by general officers. Already assigned are Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, USA, in Formosa; Maj. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trappnell, USA, in Indo-China, and Maj. Gen. Robert M. Cannon, USA, in the Philippines.

General Gillmore, a 1925 graduate of the United States Military Academy, has been Director of the Joint Airborne Troop Board at Ft. Bragg, N. C., since April 1952. During the same period he has been senior Army member on the Joint Air Transportation Board and the Joint Tactical Air Support Board.

General Pierson

He will be succeeded as Director of the Joint Airborne Troop Board by Maj. Gen. Albert Pierson, until recently Chief of the Joint USMAG to the Republic of the Philippines. He also will succeed General Gillmore in the other two posts which the latter held.

General Pierson previously had been designated to take command of Camp Polk, La. The Army said an announcement will be made later concerning that vacancy.

Navy Religious Conference

The Navy's first large-scale conference for Religious Leaders since the end of World War II was held this week at the Naval Base, Newport, R. I.

Twenty-five religious leaders of all faiths, who are concerned with the spiritual and moral welfare of Service personnel attended the three day conference. They are from the national headquarters of their respective religious bodies and are the individuals most concerned with providing chaplains for the Armed Forces and in leading their churches to provide a positive ministry to Service men and women.

Rear Adm. Edward B. Harp, jr., Chief of Chaplains headed the Conference.

GREETINGS TO THE ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL ON ITS NINETIETH ANNIVERSARY

The Honorable Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense—"Heartiest congratulations to the Army Navy Air Force Journal for its ninety years of stimulating contribution to the National Defense. You of the present staff may well take pride in The Journal's role over the years in bespeaking the cause of a strong America and in helping to assure the nation of a well informed military family.

"You have my warmest best wishes for continued growth in service and success."

The Honorable Robert T. Stevens, Secretary of the Army—"Ever exemplifying the highest standards of military journalism, the Army Navy Air Force Journal has played an important role in the lives of members of our Armed Forces throughout the whole momentous span of our national growth and military development since the Civil War. I heartily congratulate it on its ninety years of service to the military community and to the cause of national security, and extend my best wishes for continued success."

The Honorable Robert B. Anderson, Secretary of the Navy—"For ninety years The Journal has adhered faithfully to that wise policy which its founders announced in Vol. I, No. 1. Specifically, it has always directed its impartial influence toward the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the maintenance of the prestige of military service.

"Today, no other publication is more alert to the necessary restoration of some of the lost attractiveness to a Service career. This problem of attracting and keeping competent professional military personnel poses a serious challenge to our national security program. The Journal meets this problem squarely with accurate and authoritative information about all military affairs.

"On the ninetieth anniversary of The Journal, I am pleased to send you and your staff my hearty congratulations and my best wishes for continued success."

The Honorable Harold E. Talbot, Secretary of the Air Force—"For nearly a century, the Army Navy Air Force Journal has performed a commendable service for military personnel by its objective reporting and interpretation of news concerning the Armed Forces. I congratulate The Journal on its 90th birthday and extend sincere good wishes for its continued success."

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—"I am sure I speak for your far-flung readership among the Armed Forces when I send warmest congratulations upon the ninetieth anniversary of the Army Navy Air Force Journal. During its long record of service The Journal has become firmly identified with the cause of adequate national security and with the personal interests of the individual men and women who have manned our defenses.

"You have my every good wish for continued success in the future."

General Matthew B. Ridgway, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army—"Heartiest congratulations to the Army Navy Air Force Journal on the occasion of its ninetieth birthday anniversary. The men and women of the Army—of this generation and of generations before them—have found The Journal an always informative companion and an ever faithful champion. I know they join with me in extending warmest best wishes for your continued success."

Admiral Robert B. Carney, Chief of Naval Operations—"Please accept my sincere congratulations on the occasion of your 90th birthday. The men and women of the Navy long have received much benefit from the Army Navy Air Force Journal because of your accurate information of service activities. You have my best wishes for many more years of continued high performance and success."

General Nathan F. Twining, Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Force—"Congratulations to the Army Navy Air Force Journal on the occasion of its 90th anniversary. The Journal long has been held in high esteem by members of the military service for its fair and accurate reporting and its objective editorial policy. Best wishes for continuing success."

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., Commandant, U. S. Marine Corps—"I am genuinely pleased to extend to you and the members of your staff the sincere congratulations of all Marines on the occasion of the 90th anniversary of the founding of the Army Navy Air Force Journal.

"Throughout these many years The Journal has maintained an enviable record of service to the members of the Armed Forces. I am confident that this outstanding reputation will be further enhanced in the years to come. You have our best wishes for every success in the future."

Vice Admiral Merlin O'Neill, Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard—"On the occasion of the 90th anniversary of your publication I am reminded that most of us are prone to take note only of today's accomplishments. In the rush of current happenings, and the responsibility they impose on us, we are apt to forget what has gone before, and to place too low a value on the experience and understanding that come only from long service such as yours has been.

"I am impressed by the fact that while The Journal has kept pace with changes in military thinking and operations, it has retained the down-to-earth, friendly and conservative approach that has marked its publication for nearly a century.

General Porter was commended for accomplishing with "wisdom and diplomacy" innumerable problems through his "brilliant staff planning, coordination and direction."

Army Saves 13 Million

The Army estimated this week that it saved almost $13,000,000 by putting into practice suggestions submitted by military and civilian personnel during fiscal year 1953.

For adopted suggestions concerning the use of manpower, money and materials, the Army paid $282,520 in cash during FY 1953 to civilian employees under its Efficiency Awards Program.

During fiscal year 1953, the Army received a total of 57,517 suggestions, of which 11,814 were accepted.

The Army's Efficiency Awards Program was first adopted in 1943. Since that time, the Army has received 418,008 suggestions, of which 73,870 were adopted with first-year savings of more than $127,000,000. Payments of $1,918,031 were received by civilian personnel for their suggestions. Cash payments to military personnel are not authorized.

Fast Press For Korea

A mobile high-speed printing press will be installed in Korea by a three-man team of printing specialists from the Psychological Warfare Center, Ft. Bragg, N. C., which also will instruct personnel of the 1st Loudspeaker and Leaflet Company in the operation of the unit.

The unit is capable of turning out a million leaflets a day. It also is equipped with a specially devised code which permits typists to prepare copy in 16 different languages which they need not necessarily understand.

The unit will be housed in a 10-ton trailer which has automatic controls for heat, humidity and air-conditioning, which makes it possible to operate the printing machine in temperatures ranging from 40 degrees below to 120 degrees above zero, Fahrenheit.

Army to Convene Selection Boards In October

The Army will announce early in September plans to convene selection boards—probably early the next month—to recommend Regular and non-Regular officers on active duty for promotion to temporary ranks of captain, major and lieutenant colonel.

This became known as the Army this week promoted to temporary colonel all remaining lieutenant colonels on the eligibility list.

With these promotions, the Army has exhausted the names of all officers on promotion eligibility lists.

Promoted in Special Orders No. 167, 25 Aug., were 276 lieutenant colonels, including 259 Army List, two JAGC, one Chaplain, two Medical Corps, six Dental Corps and 6 Medical Service Corps officers.

Among the Army List lieutenant colonels advanced to colonel were 94 Regulars, 156 Reserve and nine National Guard officers. This group included 61 "five per centers" with the date of rank to 20 June 1950.

It is not anticipated at the present time that there will be any new selections for colonel this year. Probability is that a new board to name lieutenant colonels for promotion will not be convened until the Spring.

However, unless there's a last-minute switch in plans, boards will soon be organized to choose first lieutenants, captains and majors for promotions.

As was the case with the recent selections to these ranks, the forthcoming boards are not expected to name long lists of officers who would be kept on eligibility lists for extended periods of time.

Instead, selections will be made only to fill immediately existing vacancies and promotions will be made as names are received from the boards.

Late this week, personnel experts were still busy at work with final details concerning zones of consideration and selection procedures.

It's hoped that an announcement can be made next week.

Gen. Crittenger on H-Bomb

The development of the hydrogen bomb by Russia "imposes on the free world the responsibility of exhausting every possibility to establish a workable international control of this newest nuclear weapon," Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, USA-Ret., has declared.

In an address 22 Aug. to the Seventh Armored Division Association in Newark, N. J., General Crittenger said that a strong and determined United States is the chief obstacle to the expansion of Communism throughout the world, and "it is incontrovertible that our responsibility is to guard that strength more than ever."

General Crittenger praised industry for its role in building up our defense, and added that "in the long run, American research and development, supported by a unified citizenry, will throw almost any balance in our favor."

Ranking Armor Leaders Meet at Convention

Pioneer leaders of the Armored Force gathered in Washington, D. C., this week to attend the annual reunion of the 1st Armored Division Association, which opened on 28 Aug.

Among those attending the convention are Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, Maj. Gen. Orlando Ward, Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, Maj. Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck, Maj. Gen. Frank A. Allen, Brig. Gen. Harry Semmes, Brig. Gen. Lawrence R. Dewey, Brig. Gen. Peter C. Hains, III, Brig. Gen. Raymond E. McQuillin, Brig. Gen. Edward G. Farrand, and Henry Cabot Lodge, United States delegate to the UN, and a reserve Colonel in Armor.

Reunion chairman is Brig. Gen. Paul M. Robinett, USA-Ret., who commanded the 1st Armored's CCB during much of the Tunisian campaign.

The Division made the initial landing near Oran and was the first American unit to contact the Germans near Tunis. Later, 1st Armored troops fought Rommel at Kasserine, destroyed Axis troops near Bizerte, and spearheaded the Anzio Beachhead breakout to Rome and the drive to the Alps.

A feature of the reunion will be the presentation by Brig. Gen. Marcel Jean Pinette on behalf of the French Government of the "Medaille de la France Liberee," to 20 former members of the Division.

Gen. Lindquist to 6th Div.

Brig. Gen. Roy E. Lindquist, formerly commanding officer at Camp Stoneman, Calif., arrived at Ft. Ord, Calif., 17 Aug., to assume new duties as assistant division commander, 6th Inf. Div.

Keep Up Mail Flow, Army Secretary Stevens Urges

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens has urged families and friends of soldiers to bear in mind the continuing importance to troops stationed overseas of receiving mail from home regularly.

Mr. Stevens said: "As Secretary of the Army I have twice had an opportunity of going to the Far East and visiting the Eighth Army."

"I have also had an opportunity of going to Europe and visiting the Seventh Army. These two Armies are splendid outfits; they are well-fed, well-clothed and well-equipped. They are armies of which all Americans can be very proud."

"There is one thing, however, that means more to the average boy serving overseas than mess call, and that is mail call. I hope that anybody who has a relative or a friend serving overseas with the United States Army will find the time to write that boy a letter during the next 24 hours, and having done so, will keep up the flow of mail."

"This is particularly important now that the Eighth Army is serving in an armed truce, rather than in combat, and the mail is more important to the boys in the Eighth Army today than it ever has been before."

Honored At Parade

A full dress military review honoring Mr. Clarence Arata and Miss Betty Moore of the Washington Board of Trade for their cooperation with the Military District of Washington in civic-military programs was held Monday 24 Aug. on the parade ground at Ft. Lesley J. McNair, D. C.

Mr. Arata is Director of the Greater National Capital Committee and Assistant Executive Vice President of the Washington Board of Trade and Miss Moore is his assistant.

Army Leader Sees Airlift Key To Ground Mobility

Under Secretary of the Army Earl D. Johnson feels that the use of airlift, both transoceanic and assault, may be the key to mobility of our ground forces and their superior striking force in any future war.

Speaking at the Second Annual Airpower Symposium held during the meeting of the Air Force Association in Washington, D. C., on 22 Aug., Secretary Johnson also disclosed that the Army is striving to lighten the combat team load so it can be more easily carried by air, and is planning to incorporate in its basic doctrines the concept of air-mobility.

"The key to our plans," he said, "must be mobility . . . fast, dependable, ever-present capacity for mobility . . . land, sea and air mobility . . . mobility which is capable of confusing and outstripping enemy intelligence. We need . . . and dreadfully need . . . the capacity to deliver relatively powerful forces of men and materiel rapidly to any part of the world."

Mr. Johnson said that while we cannot hope to meet an enemy on a man-for-man basis, "we could win, if forced into war, by being able to move rapidly through all dimensions of space and time."

"We can win by exploiting our strength, a strength which is so uniquely developed in the United States. I refer to the strength that lies in the capacity of American industry to contrive, operate and maintain the machinery of mobility."

He said the Army had embarked on a program of lightening the load of the combat infantryman and the weapons and equipment which he uses to make them "airliftable." This program of lightening equipment also extends to a host of support items, such as ammunition, trucks, jeeps and large calibre guns, he said.

Whether the weight-reduction program is successful or not depends to a large degree on "the great American air industry and its application to our problems." With the cooperation of the industry, he said, "we should be able to achieve skillful blending of the fighting man and his weapons with the airlift he needs for mobility."

"This problem of becoming airborne and mobile is not just an exercise," he stated. "It is a considered goal which we must not fail to attain. If war should come, an airlift capacity must exist which is, on the one hand, transoceanic so that we can deploy rapidly, and which, on the other hand, is capable of lightning assault."

Atomic Tactics

"Atomic Weapons in Land Combat" by Col. G. C. Reinhardt and Lt. Col. W. R. Kintner. Foreword by Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, USA. Published by the Military Service Publishing Co., Harrisburg, Pa. $3.95.

Colonel Reinhardt, Director of The Engineer School's Department of Military Arts at Ft. Belvoir, Va., and Lieutenant Colonel Kintner, now in Korea, are co-authors of this new treatment of atomic warfare.

The book is the first comprehensive work on the tactics of atomic warfare by professional soldiers that has been cleared by the Defense Department.

The authors assert that atomic weapons alone, either in a tactical or strategic role cannot win a major war. They do regard tactical employment of these super-weapons as a vital "equalizer" between the limited number of NATO divisions and an aggressor's hordes.

The development of new weapons has always necessitated tactical changes and the authors equate atomic weapons as "at least equal in military significance" to the crossbow and machine gun.

Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy introduces the book with the comment that "we tend to exaggerate the threat while almost ignoring the potent defense included in our own atomic capabilities."

Here is a summary of some other points made in the book:

An atomic war will have to be one of extreme movement and will place a premium on dispersion and concealment if divisions are not to be made ineffective in a matter of seconds.

Major invasions like the one at Omaha Beach in Normandy, with the horizon jammed with combat ships, landing craft and fighting men, are a thing of the past, but swift, hard-hitting amphibious operations, probably combined with airborne operations will increase.

The American tendency to logistical profligacy—excessive mounds of supplies—will have to give way to austerity.

Army-AF Dental Corps Picnic

The annual Dental Corps picnic for Army and Air Force dental officers and their families was held at Ft. Hunt, Va., on 22 Aug. Included in the over 350 guests who attended were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Walter D. Love, Chief of the Army Dental Corps; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Marvin E. Kennebeck, Chief of the Air Force Dental Service; also Maj. Gen. and Mrs. George R. Kennebeck, Ret., former Chief of the Air Force Dental Service; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. E. W. Cowan, Director of Dental Activities, Walter Reed Army Medical Center; Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow, DC, Deputy Director, Selective Service.

From surrounding posts were Col. and Mrs. Donald L. Cook, Chief of Dental Service, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.; Col. and Mrs. Marion L. Mills, Chief of Dental Service, Ft. Dix, N. J.; Col. and Mrs. Martin F. Sullivan, Chief of Dental Service, Ft. Lee, Va.; Col. and Mrs. Harold G. Ott, Second Army Dental Surgeon, Ft. Meade, Md.; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Hugh D. Avery, Chief of Dental Service, Ft. Meade, Md.; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas B. Seay, Chief of Dental Service, Camp Pickett, Va.; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Francis L. Flatt, Chief of Dental Service, Ft. Monroe, Va.; Col. Wm. F. Scheumann, Ret., from Buzzards Bay, Mass.

The picnic featured a softball game between the Army and Air Force, which was won by Army by score of 6-4. Pony rides and games were provided for the children.

Lt. Col. Richard A. Grundler, DC, Ft. Belvoir, Va., was Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

The Truce of the Bear

When he stands up like a tired man, tottering near and near;

When he stands up as pleading, in wavering, man-brute guise,

When he veils the hate and cunning of his little swinish eyes;

When he shows as seeking quarter, with paws like hands in prayer,

That is the time of peril—the time of the Truce of the Bear!

Adm. Fechteler Takes Over

Top ranking military officials of NATO greeted Admiral William M. Fechteler, USN, as he arrived in Naples, Italy, last week to take command of the Allied Forces, Southern Europe.

Upon arrival on 18 Aug., Admiral Fechteler was met by Lt. Gen. David M. Schlatter, USAF, Acting CinC, AFSE, and Maj. Gen. Umberto Fiori, Commander of the Italian Air Force Academy, representing the Italian military forces.

The following day, the former CNO received full military honors in front of the NATO Headquarters building, and that evening was entertained with a reception by members of his staff, the staffs of his subordinate commands and his support commands.

Among the guests at the reception were Admiral Massimo Girosi, Italian Navy, ComCentMed; Vice Adm. Jerauld Wright, USN, CinCNeM; Vice Adm. John H. Cassidy, USN, ComStrikForSouth; Lt. Gen. Giorgio Liuzzi, Italian Army, Comiliter, and General Schlatter.

Also attending were the Prefect of Naples, the city's mayor and the Naples Consuls General of France, Greece, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Flag Changes

Rear Adm. John P. Whitney, USN, Chief of Naval Air Basic Training, was ordered this week to the Pacific to take command of Carrier Division Five.

The assignment was part of a four-way shift of flag officers which sends Rear Adm. Dale Harris to Pensacola as successor to Admiral Whitney. Admiral Harris had been Commander of Naval Air Bases, 14th Naval District.

Rear Adm. John M. Will, Commander, Military Sea Transportation Service, Atlantic Area, with headquarters at Brooklyn, was ordered to command of Amphibious Group Three, Pacific.

He will be succeeded by Rear Adm. Redfield Mason, now serving on the Staff, Commander, Naval Forces, Far East.

No assignments were announced for Rear Adm. Robert F. Hickey, present Commander of Carrier Division Five, or Rear Adm. Frederick S. Withington, present Commander of Amphibious Group Three.

TO KOREA. Brig. Gen. Verne J. McCall (right) former Director of Information for the Marine Corps, discusses his new assignment with Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Lejeune & Pendleton Are Now Marine Bases

Two of the Marine Corps' biggest installations have been ordered redesignated and their missions have been changed by Secretary of the Navy Robert Anderson.

They are the Marine Barracks at Camp Lejeune, N. C., commanded by Maj. Gen. Henry D. Linscott, and the Marine Barracks at Camp Pendleton, Calif., commanded by Brig. Gen. William J. Scheyer. In the future they will be known as Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, and Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton.

Their mission will be to provide housing, training facilities, logistical support, and certain administrative support for Fleet Marine Force units in the Atlantic and Pacific, and other assigned units.

They will conduct specialized schools and other training as directed; receive, process, and conduct combat training as directed for personnel to be assigned to replacement units; and will organize replacement units for shipment overseas as directed.

They also will provide logistical support, as directed, to other Marine Corps activities. Both are under the command and management control of General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps.

General Pollock Elected

Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Pollock, USMC, Director of the Marine Corps Educational Center at Quantico, has been elected President of the First Marine Division Association, succeeding Brig. Gen. William H. Harrison, USMC-Ret.

The Association held its annual reunion at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago. New York City was selected as the site for the 1954 reunion.

Nine Marine Officers

Selected For Maj. Gen.

President Eisenhower has approved the promotion of nine Marine Corps general officers to major general.

Four of the group, Major Generals George F. Good, Jr., Clayton C. Jerome, Randolph McCall Pate and Merrill B. Twining, already hold two-star rank by virtue of selection by non-statutory boards last year.

Brigadier Generals selected for promotion were: Robert O. Bare, Albert D. Cooley, John C. McQueen and James P. Riseley.

Two Aviators

Only two of the group, Generals Jerome and Cooley, are Naval Aviators. Their selection brings to a total of six the number of aviators serving in the Marine Corps' top 29 billets.

Two officers were passed over for the second time and five were passed over for the first time.

Two-star vacancies now exist for all but one of the brigadier generals and those who will be promoted in the immediate future are Generals McQueen, Riseley, Cooley and Fuller.

Those Selected

General McQueen, Director of the Marine Corps Reserve, is a 1921 Naval Academy graduate who formerly headed the Marine Public Information office. During WWII, he fought in the invasions of the Marshalls, Marianas and Okinawa. He is 54.

General Riseley, 55, is Commander of the Marine Air Ground Task Force, Kaneohe, Hawaii. A 1922 graduate of the Naval Academy, he commanded the Sixth Marine Regiment in the invasion of the Marianas during WWII.

General Cooley, a former enlisted man, commands the Third Marine Air Wing at Miami, Fla. He entered the Marine Corps in 1921 and was commissioned in 1925. The 52-year-old officer earned the Navy Cross at Guadalcanal.

General Fuller, 55, also a former enlisted man, commands the Troop Training Unit, Pacific. A five-time winner of the Navy Cross, he led the First Marine Regiment in the Chosin Reservoir breakout in Korea in 1950.

General Bare, 52, is Director of the Marine Corps Development Center at Quantico, Va. A 1924 graduate of the Naval Academy, he was Assistant Commander of the 1st Marine Division in Korea before reporting to Quantico.

General Pate, 55, present commander of the 1st Marine Division in Korea, is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute. He entered the Marine Corps in May 1921, and during WWII saw action at Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima.

General Jerome, 52, commands the Second Marine Air Wing at Cherry Point, N. C. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1922, and was formerly Director of Marine Aviation.

General Good, Commanding General of the 2d Marine Division, Camp Lejeune, N. C., also is 52. A participant in the Okinawa campaign, he formerly was Marine Corps Liaison Officer in the Office of the Vice Chief of Naval Operations.

General Twining, 51, has been hospitalized since June 1952, and is now awaiting assignment the Marine Corps said. A 1923 graduate of the Naval Academy, he is the brother of Air Force Chief of Staff Nathan F. Twining. He formerly was assistant Commander of the 1st Marine Division in Korea.

Col. Williams Is Inspector

Col. Freeman W. Williams has assumed duties as Inspector of the Third Marine Air Wing, MCAS, Miami, Fla., succeeding Col. Kirk Armistead, who was assigned as Commanding Officer of MWSG-37.

Colonel Williams was relieved as Wing Communications Officer by Maj. Irvin V. Masters.

Navy Selects Inactive Lts.

The Navy has announced the selection of 6,488 inactive officers of the Naval Reserve for promotion from lieutenant (jg) to lieutenant. The group includes 13 women.

Those selected will be informed by individual letter.

AERIAL SENTRY—First photo of a new all-seeing lookout plane destined for flying radar station duty with both the U.S. Navy and Air Force. Based on Super Constellation transport design for long range, long endurance and high altitude flight, this reconnaissance scout produced by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation carries six tons of radar and special electronics devices. The dorsal-like hump on the back, huge bulge underneath and elongated nose house radar antennae.

Flying Radar Stations Being Built for AF & Navy

Flying radar stations, new high-altitude reconnaissance aircraft loaded with six tons of electronic detection apparatus, were disclosed this week to be in production for both the Air Force and the Navy at Lockheed Aircraft Corporation.

The craft are designed to carry the military services' most powerful search radar to high altitudes where radar beams (which cannot bend over the horizon) attain their maximum effectiveness in spotting either surface or air targets. The effective range of the radar was not revealed.

Announcement that production is under way was the first official report that the Air Force as well as Navy has ordered picket planes.

The new weapons will be special versions of the Lockheed Super Constellation transport model, powered by turbo-compound engines and capable of long range, long endurance and high altitude.

U.S.A.F. radar planes are designated RC-121C. The Navy calls its version the WV-2, successor to WV-1s used to test and develop aerial radar searching for the past three years.

WV-2s will be used by the Navy primarily to screen U. S. fleets. They will be able to fly from land bases to points far at sea, where they can patrol for long periods.

WV-2s will be equipped to serve also as Navy fighter-plane directors, guiding carrier planes to enemy craft far beyond the radar reach of surface combat-information-center ships.

The Lockheed radar planes, packing more than six tons of electronic equipment and accessories, will be a wholly new shape in the sky.

Protruding from the top of the fuselage will be an 8-foot-high structure resembling the dorsal fin of a sailfish. It will house a height-finder radar antenna.

Mushrooming from the bottom will be a bowl-shaped radome, described as "probably the largest plastic part ever built." The radomes are made by Zenith Plastics Company, Los Angeles.

Powered by four 3250-h.p. Wright turbo-compound engines, the ship will possess all the range and altitude capabilities of commercial Super Constellations. Tiptanks carrying extra fuel will give added range. Despite the huge radomes, speed will approximate the 335-m.p.h. cruising speed of airliner versions.

Facilities for a crew of up to 31 men are provided. Cabins are sound-proofed. Seats are scientifically designed to minimize fatigue on long missions. Each plane will carry a complete electronics maintenance shop and a team of specialists to make in-flight adjustments and repairs.

The design provides for a galley for meals aloft and bunks for off-duty crews. Cabins are pressurized to maintain 10,600-foot comfort at 25,000 feet. The interior can be kept at an even 75 degrees despite 60-below-zero temperatures outside.

The Navy pioneered in airborne radar warning techniques using two earlier Constellations converted into WV-1s. On the basis of WV-1 performance, Lockheed was assigned to develop an entire new "weapons system facility" around the enlarged Super Constellation.

Mine Warfare Course

Opened at Monterey

A new graduate course in Mine Warfare was opened this month at the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, Calif.

In explaining the need for the new course, the Navy noted that during the conflict in Korea it became obvious that there existed a great need for officers trained in all phases of mine warfare.

A "Crash" program, so called due to its emergency and hurried beginnings, of officer training was placed in effect and has been turning out officers to fill the immediate needs of the Navy.

The nature of this early program, however, prevented the training of personnel in basic research and development work needed for the rapid and orderly development of an effective Mine Warfare Force, the Navy said. Thus, "in an attempt to fill this need," the course in Mine Warfare was conceived.

Plan To Use Supersonic Planes On Carriers

Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air James H. Smith, Jr., has disclosed that the Navy "can and will" operate supersonic fighter and attack planes from the decks of its carriers.

Speaking on 21 Aug. at the annual convention of the Air Force Association in Washington, D. C., Secretary Smith said the horizons of Naval aircraft development have been extended by three carrier developments which improve the airplane-handling characteristics of the big flattops. These are, he said, the new steam catapult, newly-developed arresting gear and the canted deck.

The steam catapult, Mr. Smith noted, "has the power to launch the heaviest attack bomber which we now have under development."

The newly-developed arresting gear, he said, "will allow us to land the heavier, faster planes of the future," and the canted deck "has greatly increased the carrier's flexibility." In operations aboard the canted deck carrier Antietam during the past few months, he said "more than 5,000 landings have been made during daylight, darkness, and low visibility without a single barrier accident."

Secretary Smith noted also that the Air Force is "looking with interest" at the steam catapult and the new arresting gear "for take-off and landing operations ashore."

Boost Three to Maj. Gen.; Eight Cols. to Brig. Gen.

President Eisenhower on 24 Aug. gave recess promotions to three Air Force brigadier generals and eight colonels—three of them commanders of Strategic Air Command Divisions.

Those appointed with the positions they will occupy follow in order of their new temporary rank:

To Major General

Upthegrove, Fay R., 76A, Commander, 20th Air Force, FEAF, APO 239, c/o PM, San Francisco.

Hood, Reuben C., Jr., 498A, Commander, Caribbean Air Command, APO 825, c/o PM, New Orleans.

Blake, Gordon A., 582A, Director of Communications, DCS/O, USAF.

To Brigadier General

Niess, Oliver K. (Medical), 19022A, Chief, Medical Inspection Division, IG, Kelly AFB, Tex.

Lee, William L., 430A, Vice Commander, 13th Air Force FEAF.

Fagg, William L., 465A, Air Provost Marshal, USAF.

Dougher, Charles B., 600A, Commander, 801st Air Division, SAC, Lockbourne AFB, Ohio.

Mundell, Lewis L., 1286A, Dep. Dir of Requirements, DCS/D, USAF.

Westover, Charles B., 1351A, Commander, 12th Air Div., SAC, March AFB, California.

Hipps, William G., 1358A, Executive Asst. to the Secretary of the Air Force.

Hardy, John S., 1502A, Commander, 36th Air Division, SAC, Davis-Monthan AFB, Tucson, Ariz.

Safety at CrewTAF

The CrewTAF Ground Safety Trophy was awarded recently to Randolph Field, Tex., as the base having the lowest USAF motor vehicle accident rate in CrewTAF during the period from January to June of this year.

The trophy was presented to Brig. Gen. J. H. Davies, Randolph commander, by Maj. Gen. J. K. Lacey, CrewTAF commander, who singled out the Motor Pool personnel for special praise.

U. S. AIR FORCE

FAST B. A. FOR COL.

Col. Jerome B. McCauley, who retired from the Air Force in 1950 after 28 years active service, was graduated recently from North Texas State College, Denton, where he completed the four-year course in record time of two and a half years.

The colonel is now working toward his master's degree in Business Administration, and hopes to complete the work by next February. During WWII, he piloted the lead transport plane carrying paratroopers for the invasion of Sicily.

ATRC Staff Assignments

Col. Bryan L. Rakestraw has assumed duties as Staff Judge Advocate for the Air Training Command at Scott AFB, Ill., replacing Col. William E. Carpenter.

Newly announced as Staff Chaplain at ATRC Headquarters is Col. Palmer P. Pierce, who replaces Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Russell L. Blaisdell.

McCLELLAN AIR FORCE BASE, CALIF.—Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Linder, (right) Commander of the 55th Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron, Medium, Weather for the last one and one-half years, is shown with his successor Lt. Col. Russell W. Neely, former deputy commander of the 55th. Colonel Linder will attend a two-year advanced meteorology course at UCLA beginning 4 Sept. '53. The 55th SRS based at McClellan AFB, Sacramento, Calif., has as its mission Weather Reconnaissance. Its specially modified B-29's range far out over the North Pacific gathering weather data for world wide use.

Jet Bomb Wings To Pass In Flights Over Atlantic

The Strategic Air Command's 306th B-47 Stratojet Bombardment Wing, the first jet bomber wing to train outside the United States, will complete a 90-day training exercise in England early next month and return to its home base at MacDill AFB, Fla.

Another unit, the 305th Bombardment Wing, also equipped with Boeing medium jet bombers, will deploy to England at the same time for a three-month period of training. This group is commanded by Col. Elliott Vandevanter, Jr., who, on a recent survey flight from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Fairford, England, a distance of 2,416 miles, flew an average speed of 571 mph.

That flight, together with another crossing the same day from England to this country, established a new unofficial trans-Atlantic speed record.

The 306th Bombardment Wing is commanded by Col. Michael N. W. McCoy.

The two Bombardment Wings will pass each other over the Atlantic ocean as they trade places in England and the United States.

The 306th will return to the U. S. by flying non-stop from Fairford, England, to MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla.

The unit will span a distance of approximately 4,500 miles by use of air-to-air refueling.

At the same time, the 305th Bombardment Wing, will cross non-stop from Limestone, Me., to Brize-Norton, England.

Both of the Stratojet wings are assigned permanently to MacDill AFB.

Col. Roberts Mitchel C.O.

Col. James J. Roberts, Jr., has assumed command of Mitchel AFB, N. Y., headquarters of the Continental Air Command and First Air Force.

Vandenberg & Doolittle Given AFA Annual Honors

The Air Force Association's top award for contribution to American airpower, the H. H. Arnold trophy, and eight other awards and citations were presented at the Association's seventh annual Airpower Banquet held in Washington, D. C., 22 Aug.

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, recently retired USAF Chief of Staff, received the Association's H. H. Arnold Trophy and was named as "Aviation's Man of the Year."

AFA's Air Age Award for "distinguished service contributing to national security and world peace" went to retired Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle in recognition of his long career as a test pilot, aeronautical engineer, soldier-scientist combat leader and Air Force commander.

Honored with Generals Vandenberg and Doolittle was Mervin J. Kelly, scientist and chairman of the committee that recently made a series of recommendations to the President on the nation's air defenses, who received the Science Award. Milton Caniff, creator of the "Steve Canyon" comic strip, was given the Arts and Letters Award, and Col. Klair E. Back accepted the Flight Award on behalf of the men of the Third Air Rescue Group of the Military Air Transport Service. The Third ARS Group, most highly decorated unit in the Korean war, flew more than 16,000 sorties and evacuated some 10,000 UN personnel from near or behind enemy lines during the war.

8 NE Command Officers Honored For Arctic Flight

Eight Northeast Air Command officers have been awarded plaques by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, commemorating their first flight north of the Arctic Circle in the F-94B Starfire jet fighter.

Members of the 59th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron at Goose Air Base in Labrador, these officers flew their jets to Thule Air Base in northern Greenland in September of 1952. They were only recently awarded the plaque for their feat in flying Starfires farther north than they had ever ventured before.

Officers receiving the awards were: Maj. Howard C. Johnson, flight leader; Capt. Thomas E. Symonds; 2d Lt. Lawrence J. Ellgass; Capt. Harry C. Hancock; Capt. Francis R. Wallace; Capt. Robert A. Coffin; and Capt. Alva M. Hallenbeck.

120 Shirt Wear-Out

Air Force officials reiterated this week that no cut-off date is planned for wearing of blue shade 120 poplin shirts. They said that there have been reports of sales resistance because of fear that an early cut-off date would be established.

It was stated that personnel will be allowed to wear the blue shade 120 poplin shirts until unserviceable.

COL. EDWIN F. CAREY, JR., (right) Air Defense Command Headquarters Staff Officer, receives congratulations from Maj. Gen. Jarred V. Crabb, ADC Chief of Staff, after being presented an Oak Leaf Cluster to his Legion of Merit. The award ceremony took place 21 Aug. in General Crabb's office and was given to Colonel Carey for service in Korea.

AF Management Course Chief Named to Foundation

Professor Joe L. Jessup, Assistant Dean of the George Washington University School of Government and Coordinator of the University's AF Manpower Management Training Program, has been appointed a trustee of the Training Within Industry Foundation at Summit, N. J.

In his connection with AFMMTP, Prof. Jessup has been responsible for the development and operation of a concentrated course in advanced management which has been given to more than 1,100 senior AF commanders, ranging in rank from lieutenant colonel through major general, since 1951.

In addition to his association with the TWIF, Dean Jessup will continue on the faculty of GWU where an additional 700 AF officers will be trained during the coming academic year.

Gen. LeMay Receives Trophy

General Nathan F. Twining, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, has presented the 1952 Daedalian Trophy for flying safety to General Curtis E. LeMay, Commander of the Strategic Air Command. It is the second successive year the trophy has been awarded to the Strategic Air Command.

The trophy, a silver cup, is awarded annually to the Air Force command flying more than 100,000 hours which achieves the lowest adjusted aircraft accident rate during the calendar year. It was established in 1937 by the Order of Daedalian, an organization of World War I pilots.

The citation said, in part, "The accomplishment of this feat for the second successive year is a tribute to the excellent flying safety program and the safety consciousness of all members of the Strategic Air Command. This accomplishment is particularly noteworthy since the command flew more total hours during calendar year 1952 than during calendar year 1951."

Award To Gen. Powell

Maj. Gen. James F. Powell, commander of Keesler AFB, Miss., since 1949, retired from active duty 7 Aug. after 36 years of military service. He was awarded a second Oak Leaf cluster to the Legion of Merit award by Lt. Gen. Robert W. Harper, commander of ATRC.

The Legion of Merit medal cited General Powell, who has spent all but three years of his service career in the Air Force, for his role of commanding general at Keesler in the development of the base into the Electronics Center of the AF.

Shift AF Security Service

The Air Force Security Service has moved into permanent headquarters in a modern three-story building at Kelly AFB, Tex., after moving from Brooks AFB, Tex.

Commanding officer of the command, organized in Washington, D. C., in 1948, and moved to Brooks a year later, is Brig. Gen. H. H. Bassett.

The new headquarters will accommodate 2,500 workers.

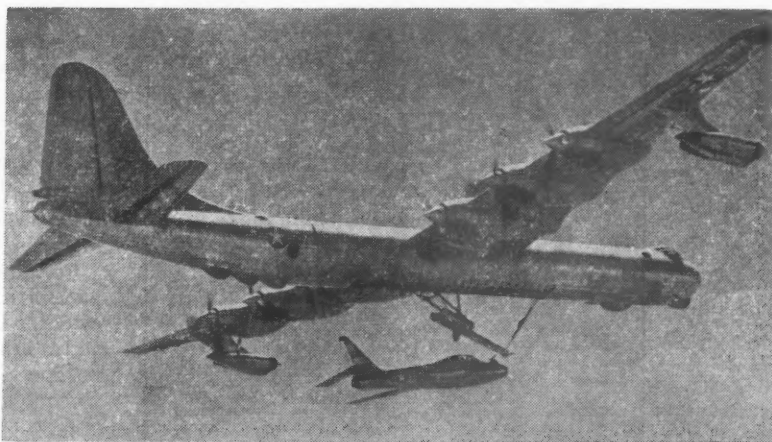

Review for Gen. Barker

The Air Force and the Air University will honor Maj. Gen. John DeF. Barker, Deputy Commander of the Air University, on his retirement from active military duty with a parade and review, Monday morning, 31 Aug., at 8 o'clock at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

General Barker's retirement after 36 years of service will be effective that day. He plans to leave shortly after the ceremony for his new home at Hendersonville, N. C.

General and Mrs. Barker were honored last week by Air University Headquarters Staff at a dinner at the Officers' Club at which Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Commander, Air University, was the principal speaker. General Kuter called General Barker the personification of all qualities of leadership taught in AU schools.

Further honors are planned for General Barker by the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce, city and county officials at a farewell luncheon at the Whitley Hotel next Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock.

AERIAL AIRCRAFT CARRIER. A huge long-range Convair B-36 recovers a modified Republic YRF-84F for an in-flight "landing."

B-36 Launches, Recovers Fighter While in Flight

Successful development of the B-36 as a carrier for reconnaissance fighter-type aircraft was announced this week by the Air Research and Development Command at Baltimore, Md.

The basic objective of this project, which began in 1950, is to provide the Air Force with the capability for long-range, high-speed reconnaissance with a high probability of survival for personnel and equipment. Extensive flight tests have proven the feasibility of operating Republic F-84s from Convair RB-36Ds.

The tests were conducted by personnel of the Weapons Systems Branch of The Air Research and Development Command's Wright Air Development Center, Dayton, Ohio, the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation's Ft. Worth Division and the Republic Aviation Corporation, Farmingdale, Long Island, N. Y.

Both aircraft have modifications which enable them to take off and land as a single unit. Also, the "parasite" F-84 can be released and retrieved by the "mother" RB-36D while in flight.

This development has proven versatile in that varied types of missions can be accomplished with limited changes or modifications of equipment and operational techniques.

The development marks the first known accomplishment of flying a full-size combat aircraft from a "mother" aircraft. Research aircraft such as the X-1 are launched from B-29s but are unable to return to the "mother" aircraft and land as a single unit. A few years ago the XF-85, an experimental "parasite" aircraft, was launched and retrieved from a B-29 as part of the research program leading to the present capability of flying F-84s from RB-36s.

The launching of an F-84 from the RB-36D will be demonstrated at the National Aircraft Show, Dayton, Ohio, 5-7 Sept.

Air Nat'l Gd. Fighter Wings Gunnery Tests Begin 3 Oct.

Combat ability of the Air National Guard will be tested at a seven-day gunnery exercise to be held at Gowen Field, Boise, Idaho, beginning 3 Oct., it was announced this week by Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, Chief, National Guard Bureau.

Teams representing each of the Air Guard's 23 fighter wings in the United States and two fighter squadrons in Puerto Rico and Hawaii will compete for trophies to be awarded top-scoring teams and individual pilots.

The teams will each fly a total of 13 missions, which will include air-to-air gunnery, strafing, dive-bombing, rocket-firing, and low-angle bombing.

Air Guard Doubles Strength

The Air National Guard has more than doubled its strength in the past year, Maj. Gen. Earl T. Ricks, Deputy Chief, National Guard Bureau, said this week.

Personnel strength has increased from approximately 15,000 a year ago to more than 35,000 officers and airmen.

Current planning calls for an Air Guard of approximately 53,000 men by July 1954, with an eventual ceiling of 85,000.

General Ricks attributes the rapid growth to the large number of Korean veterans rejoining the Guard and an increased interest created by the Air Guard combat record in Korea.

To London Convention

Lt. Col. Harriet S. Lee, Chief of the Physical Therapist Section, Women's Medical Specialist Corps, will leave on 4 Sept. by air for London, England to attend the World Confederation for Physical Therapy. At the close of the sessions on 12 Sept., Colonel Lee will go to Germany to visit Army installations having physical therapists on duty and expects to be back in Washington, D. C. by mid October.

Also attending the convention will be Maj. Brunetta Kuehlthau, WMSC, Chief Physical Therapist at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

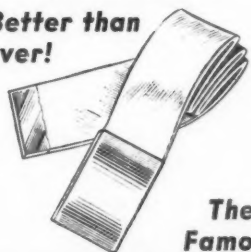

WMSC Officials to Calif.

Col. Nell Wickliffe, Chief of the Women's Medical Specialist Corps, and Lt. Col. Hilda M. Lovett, Chief of the Dietitian Section, Women's Medical Specialist Corps, left Washington 21 Aug. to attend the 1953 convention of the American Dietetic Association opening 25 Aug. in Los Angeles, Calif.

Colonel Lovett will return to Washington at the close of the sessions 28 Aug.

Colonel Wickliffe will go to San Francisco to attend the American Hospital Association meeting. While there she will observe the WMSC activities at Letterman Army Hospital and subsequently will visit, for the same purpose, the U.S. Army hospitals at Camp Stoneman, Ft. Ord and Camp Roberts, Calif.; Ft. Lawton, Wash.; Ft. Riley, Kan., and the Madigan Army Hospital, Tacoma, Wash.

"This trend to decrease pay of the military in the last few years is penny wise and pound foolish. I am determined to reverse this trend. Restoration of the various benefits would be a true economy."—SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE HAROLD E. TALBOTT.

90 Years Young. It is with considerable pride, albeit tempered with humbleness, that THE JOURNAL marks with this issue completion of 90 years of continuous publication.

Throughout nine decades of war and peace, THE JOURNAL has devoted itself to the interests of the National Defense and of the members of the Armed Forces and their families. The history of THE JOURNAL is the history of the Services—the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard—through the endless procession of peaks and valleys, expansions and cut-backs, which seem inevitably to mark a democracy's attitude toward its steadfast defenders.

Like the Services, THE JOURNAL has built up traditions and a continuity of personnel to carry them on. Though individuals come and go, their services overlap and interlock so that there always exists a connecting chain of associations to carry forward and strengthen basic principles and ideals. THE JOURNAL thus reaches back unbroken to 1863 when Col. William Conant Church, a newspaperman-soldier, gathered together a group of fellow military correspondents and issued the first number 90 years ago today.

While the objectives for which it has fought remain unchanged, times and conditions have altered. THE JOURNAL has endeavored to keep up-to-date and forward-looking in its means of expressing them. We have moved with the times to make THE JOURNAL more interesting and presentable to our readers and more effective in serving the cause of National Security and protecting the morale of those who comprise the Uniformed Forces.

We are proud and deeply appreciative of the many messages of greeting which have come on our 90th anniversary, some of which we print in this issue because we believe they are of interest to all.

We are humble because of the devotion of those who look confidently to THE JOURNAL for integrity and fairness, for completeness in news, and strength in editorial support.

This lays upon us a serious obligation. THE JOURNAL is conscious of its responsibilities and is determined to continue to give of its utmost to discharge them for this and future generations.

Preserve the USS Olympia. Because the United States has grown so rapidly and has continually looked toward the future, there has been a tendency to neglect the past. Unlike the older nations of Europe we have not been eager to restore and preserve relics. Aside from some parks and memorial sites there is little to link today with our early years. The bill introduced towards the close of the last session of Congress by Senator Edward Martin (R-Pa.) offers an opportunity to redress some of our negligence in this direction.

Senator Martin proposes that the USS Olympia, flagship of Admiral Dewey at Manila Bay, be rescued from its present state of deterioration and be repaired and restored as a historic relic. It is now rusting and listing in the back channel on the Schuylkill at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. A few years ago it was an honored shrine, boarded and inspected by thousands of awed school children and patriotic citizens. But for lack of funds it finally got so bad it had to be closed to visitors.

The Senator, many years of whose life have been devoted to the military service in grades up to major general, knows the appeal the venerable

Rank

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Regardless of all unfavorable comment in the newspapers and other places regarding the rank-happy military; rank, to the average officer is simply an indication of his relative position in life.

In industry, the same rank exists, but in these cases there is no requirement for the foreman, shift supervisor, or manager to carry about the evidence of his rank since everyone knows it for he has probably been in the same company for 20 years.

Should evidence which he is required to carry around by law penalize the Army Lt., Col., or General? Is the basis of that rank (being in a lucky spot in World War II) a sound and unquestionable basis? Does the fact that temporary and permanent ranks still exist and that in many cases personnel of inferior temporary rank outrank their seniors in permanent rank give a feeling of security and sound workable basis? I do not believe so.

Surely in the period of over seven years since World War II someone might have hit upon a scheme in which all personnel, both reserve and regulars, could be integrated into one rank roster and the rank among individuals and ensuing promotions could be based not on a lucky chance, which you might have had in World War II, but on a sound system which gives suitable credit for age, experience, ability, and the regular rank which you were led to believe had some status when you accepted integration.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

There is something more important than material things. Perhaps the old phrase "Esprit de Corps" is still the best to describe it. At one time we all loved the service. It was an honorable profession; we knew we'd never get rich, that most of us would drop out short of flag rank, but with all its disadvantages we liked it. To be a commissioned officer in a service with great historical tradition, professional competence, and pride in itself was a great and satisfying experience. We had the feeling that most of our citizens respected us and the average citizen is still our most ardent champion.

But starting with the end of World War II came a vicious attack on all professional military officers. It was directed first at the graduates of the Service Academies. They were supposed to be a stiff-necked, unimaginative fraternity of martinets, devoid of culture and common sense, and only the influx of the civilian reserve saved the nation from disaster and won the war.

When it was realized that the regulars were outnumbered 20-1 during the war and that 5% provided the brilliant leadership which did win the war, the campaign settled down into a defamation of commissioned officers in general. When the Korean War started it lessened somewhat, but the cumulative effects of several years of sniping at our officers by press, periodicals and some congressmen in the wake of an outstanding victory has had a market effect on morale.

In spite of it all, most of us love

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott has helped to spread far and wide the distressing story of the decline in the Services' ability to attract and hold desirable personnel. He told why young men no longer clamor for careers in the Armed Services. The constant whittling away at pay, privileges, and fringe benefits, he declared, has been "penny wise and pound foolish." Furthermore, Mr. Talbott declared, "I am determined to reverse this trend."

Certainly, with the facts piling up and being put forth to the citizenry, the weight of both evidence and public opinion must force some action in the next session of Congress. What must be done now is to give these facts wider and wider distribution so that when the next Congress convenes there will be no member who will be ignorant of the problem.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Our escorted heavy bombers attacked the airdomes of Wewak and Boram, placing 111 tons of explosives on aircraft revetments and dispersal areas. At least twelve planes caught on the ground were destroyed. Interception by at least sixty fighters resulted in a fierce air combat wherein the enemy was badly defeated.

50 Years Ago—It has been decided that in lieu of re-establishing the Navy's South Pacific Station, that some time next year the Pacific Station will be strengthened and divided into two fleets, each to be under the command of a flag officer, but both to be considered as a part of the Pacific Station. One of these divisions will be assigned to the territory south of the boundary line of the United States, and the other to all the northern territory.

90 Years Ago—The Army of the United States, not of the States separately. The notions concerning State troops have interfered with the efficiency of our Army, and have created real dangers to the Commonwealth. The war should have taught us the worth and the meaning of National existence and national character.

the service life and would not be really happy in any other. We know there are lots of faults in organizations as big as the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and we have our share of sour apples among our officers as does any group of people of such size. But all we ask is a fair shake, relief from petty sniping by people who don't know what they're talking about, and within the sphere of military activity as set by our civilian government, to let the military do its job free from armchair experts and theoreticians. History is full of examples of battles lost when politicians dictate the strategy instead of generals.

After all, our job is to win wars, and so far we haven't done so bad, have we?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In the letter, subject: "When is a Warrant Officer," signed by E. W. Chance, CWO, USN, in Readers' Views in your issue of 15 Aug., the statement that the restrictions of the Dual-Compensation Law do not apply to Army and Air Force Chief Warrant Officers is most erroneous.

I retired as a CWO, U. S. Regular Army, on 31 Oct. 1947, at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, after over 37 years service (no disability) and the Economy Act of 1932 has stopped me from accepting any civil service position ever since. I was quoted the law on this by the Finance Office, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C., upon inquiry in 1948.

WO—RETIRED

Journal's 90th Anniversary Recalls Armed Services News of 1863

Ninety years ago today, with the United States embroiled in its third year of civil war, the first issue of THE JOURNAL rolled from the presses at 192 Broadway, New York City, its front page devoted almost in its entirety to an account of the bombardment by Union forces of the Confederate garrison at Fort Sumter—"a siege unparalleled in military annals."

The now-yellowed pages tell also how the Army of the Cumberland, led by General Rosecrans, was battering the doors of Chattanooga, and forces under General Grant were being consolidated along the Mississippi following the "magnificent campaign" which had ended in the surrender of Vicksburg.

Naval vessels (including old Ironsides) commanded by Admiral Dahlgren, were aiding the Army in the siege at Sumter, while others under Admiral Porter were busy patrolling the Mississippi in the "arduous, but unostentatious labor of blockading."

War news was of paramount interest on 29 Aug. 1863 when the initial JOURNAL was published, but then, as now, other subjects crowded the pages of the first "weekly newspaper, devoted to the interests of the Army and Navy, and to the dissemination of correct military information."

Strangely enough, several of the articles were concerned with problems which, although changing over the years, still confront the military establishment in some degree.

The need to maintain adequate Reserve forces was prominently outlined. THE JOURNAL voiced the hope that the Government "will not fail to heed the suggestions of the past, but will speedily organize a strong reserve force, so placed that it may be made available in those cases of emergency... for which we have hitherto been almost invariably unprepared."

The current Defense Department reorganization, and Secretary Wilson's plan to overhaul the accounting system of the Services and to provide greater strength with less money, also had its counterpart in August 1863. A new Cavalry Bureau had just been organized for the purpose of providing "more thorough organization of the means, resources and system, whereby the cavalry branch of the service may be rendered more efficient."

Present-day officers still learning their way through the maze of new proceedings for courts martial will be interested to learn that their Civil War contemporaries had just received copies of the first "Field Manual of Courts Martial" ever to be published. It contained "an explanation of the duties of all persons in any way connected with military tribunals."

Spit and polish also appear to have been as necessary in 1863 as today. The Navy opened bids for supplies which included 10,000 shoe brushes, 20,000 boxes of blacking, 20,000 "fine" and "coarse" combs, and 20,000 pounds of shaving cream.

Pay, too, was in the news. Two new books had just been published on the subject: "The Army Pay Digest," by Major Ezra Webb, and "Major Foote's New Army Pay Table." The latter reportedly "exhibiting at a glance the Monthly and Annual Pay, Tax, and Organization of the Army of the United States."

One notable major change lies in the listing of top military officials in THE JOURNAL.

In 1863 the "War Department" was headed by a Secretary (Edwin M. Stanton), an assistant secretary and a chief clerk. The Navy, also, had a Secretary (Gideon Welles), an assistant secretary and a chief clerk. Today, there are 24 secretaries, under secretaries and assistant secretaries in the sprawling military establishment.

When THE JOURNAL was first published there were eight departments in the Army: Quartermaster, Subsistence, Medical, Pay, Engineer, Ordnance, Military Department of Washington, and the Inspector General's Department. Only one (MDW) was headed by a major general. Brigadier generals were in charge of five and colonels headed the remaining two.

The Navy at the same time had eight bureaus but with slightly different names from those it now maintains: Docks and Yards, Equipment and Recruiting, Navigation, Ordnance, Construction and Repairs, Steam Engineering, Provisions and Clothing, and Medicine and Surgery. Four of the bureaus were headed by civilians, two by flag officers (one a commodore) and two by commanders.

NATO's MARINER Exercise to Start

ABOUT three hundred ships, 1,000 aircraft, and 500,000 men, from nine of the fourteen North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations, will participate in MARINER, this year's main sea-air exercise of the NATO establishment, scheduled for 16 Sept. and the 18 days thereafter. Employing elements of three area commands, it will be directed by Admiral Lynde D. McCormick (SACLANT), General Alfred M. Gruenther (SACEUR), Admiral Sir John Edleston, R.N., Commander-in-Chief Channel (CINCHAN) and Air Marshal Sir Alick Stevens, RAF, Allied Maritime Air Commander-in-Chief Channel (CINCMARCHAN).

The primary test is of protection of sea lines of communication and naval control of shipping in that vast area under Admiral McCormick's direction and in the adjacent waters of the English Channel and the North Sea—altogether the regions bounded by Greenland and Norway on the north and by Florida and Portugal on the south, reaching into the North Sea and including points in western Europe. As in the case of MAINBRACE a year ago, the huge exercise will be broken into a number of elements to permit emphasis on the protection of convoys and individual merchantmen by ship and aircraft escort, on searching out of surface and undersurface raiders, on employment of and resistance to attack of land-based air, on replenishment at sea, on minelaying and minesweeping, and the infinite variety of associated operations involved in war at sea.

THE STRIKING FLEET will leave a port in the eastern United States, its main element being the Blue carrier-borne air force under Vice-Admiral T. S. Combs, and en route will be joined by vessels of the Canadian and Royal Navies. The period when the main fleet is south of the British isles will afford opportunity for simulated air-strikes on numberless targets ashore and afloat while exposed to attacks from coastal defense elements as well as high-seas submarines of the Orange force. As always, a main purpose is the testing of NATO's command and communications systems, for exercises in those waters will engage not only the Atlantic and the Channel forces but those under Admiral Jaujard, F.N., Flag Officer Central Europe.

Among the larger vessels announced as participating are the battleships Vanguard and Iowa, the carriers Magnificent, Eagle, Illustrious, Implacable, Indefatigable, Bennington, Wasp, and Siboney, the cruisers Quebec, Sheffield, Swiftsure, Des Moines, Macon, and Worcester. Altogether there are 45 types of ship and 25 types of aircraft. Participating are Belgium, Canada, France, Denmark, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, United Kingdom, United States.

ONE OF MOSCOW'S numerous aims in recent "graciousness" toward East Germany—even including ceremonies for the blundering Grotewohl and Ulbricht—is, of course, the tenderizing of pan-German sentiment toward Russia on the eve of the West German elections a week hence. Moscow's hope is to defeat Chancellor Adenauer, the main advocate of West Germany's western alliance, and to attain that end Moscow is clearly willing to go to great lengths. This past week has accordingly found the Kremlin graciously, but somewhat belatedly, agreeing to actions which a wiser Kremlin would have undertaken years ago. Promises (not yet fulfilled to be sure) are that Germans taken prisoner in World War II will be returned—but not all the reported 300,000 still in captivity, thus allowing for further concealment of what happened to most of them; that certain East German properties will be returned; that diplomatic exchanges will take place; that occupation costs and reparations demands will be reduced. This is quite a lot of promising; there are no fulfillments in sight until after the West German elections of 6 September.

IRAN remains a center of world attention, with the western nations hesitant to pin too much faith on the favorable developments still indicated at the time these remarks are written. Mossadegh appears to be fully whipped, and if that remains the fact there will be reason for rejoicing. It was under this neurotic but wily old scamp that Iran's feeble democratic aspects were being strangled one by one; his last success had seemed to be startlingly complete, for in the course of a few days he had destroyed Iran's secret ballot, which is the essential of popular freedom, had eliminated the hostile legislature, had thwarted an incipient palace revolution, had driven the young shah into exile, and had allowed the Communist Tudeh party, a well-disciplined gang, to resume its legal existence. Dictatorship was at hand, and overtures toward Moscow were very near. That so much evil should have been achieved in a few days, only to be totally upset by a new revolution, is little short of astonishing, even to a Persian.

The young shah's first observations on returning to Teheran, and making sure that Mossadegh and his chief lieutenants are under control, are worthy of mention. One was that it is "much too soon" to talk of resuming full relations with Britain, which shows a certain awareness that the oil matter is not something to be disposed of immediately, in view of lingering Iranian delusions of chauvinist character. The other remark was that the Iranian treasury, deprived of oil revenue for two years, has to be filled up by "somebody" very soon. We will be hearing fairly soon who "somebody" is.

Unfortunately this is no trivial matter. Iranian oil is important to more than one power, and Iranian geography very important indeed. Some of Britain's most skillful diplomacy a century and a half ago was directed toward blocking Imperial Russia's persistent efforts to gain control of Persia as well as Afghanistan; a century later British diplomacy was able to halt Imperial Germany's Drang nach Osten. We will find that our diplomats have inherited a large part of that white man's burden, and it is not a light one.

MEMO*News And Gossip
For Journal Readers*

A MILITARY PAY RAISE will be taken into account during Pentagon consideration of the FY '55 budget, although funds to cover such a pay hike may not be included in the first fiscal estimates, pending a statement from the White House. It's now obvious that Defense leaders will throw their full weight behind a cost-of-living pay adjustment for those in uniform. Whereas previously, civilian chiefs have been chary about mentioning the pay problem, one after another during recent weeks has come out in public for a pay boost. Whatever their continuing concern over economy, the men who run the Pentagon are all accustomed, as a result of their civilian industrial affiliations, to the relationship of cost-of-living and pay. For example, Air Force Secretary Talbott now states that pay and allowances of Service personnel have fallen "far behind" the 315 per cent increase achieved by labor since 1937. Meantime, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported this week that for the fifth consecutive month there's been an increase in the cost-of-living. Scores of thousands of industrial employees received a pay adjustment as a result in keeping with terms of "escalator contracts" in which Defense Secretary Wilson played a pioneer role.

A MARINE CORPS GENERAL, for the first time since WWI, has been given duty with combat forces in Europe, but both DefDept and HQMC refuse to discuss his role there, presumably because he comes under a NATO command (headed by one of Britain's top admirals). The Marine is Brig. Gen. Robert E. Hogaboom, who is still carried on official HQMC rolls as Deputy Commander of the 2d Marine Division, which is based at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

A TERMINOLOGY CHANGE has been ordered for Senior Army, National Guard and Unit "Instructors" serving with reserve components. After 1 Sept., they will be known as "Advisors."

PILOT APPLICANT SHORTAGES, recently the subject of much discussion at the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill, won't be helped by the fact that of the first 6,592 Air Force officers ordered released from active duty involuntarily, 2,178 are fliers. As a result, the Air Force will be pinched for pilots until the anticipated increase in flying training applications results from new requirements for enrollment in senior AF ROTC courses. The fact that some B-47 crewmen are included among the first to be released involuntarily comes as some surprise, since presumably such personnel are hand-picked.

ARMY FAR EAST CHIEFS have recommended increased emphasis on physical conditioning. The Army has told its ZI commanders this problem is of "special importance," since the economy program will force closing on 1 Jan. 1954 of the Physical Training School at Ft. Bragg, N.C. An Army order energetically directs commanders to make certain "the best physical training program possible is maintained."

THE JUNIOR MAN in the Defense Dept. secretariat line-up will be the Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs. Precedence among the nine assistant secretaries is based on the date of their being sworn into office. The legislative chief had yet to be named as The Journal went to press. This delay could adversely affect military legislation during the second session of the 83d Congress, during which members will be shooting for early adjournment to permit political fence-building at home in an election year.

A ROTATION MORALE PROBLEM may develop in Korea. Many commanders in the Far East and some Pentagon officials already are worried about it. The Army announced that beginning in October personnel would be rotated after 16 months' service. Then, the Marine Corps came up with a 14 month rotation plan. The Air Force program is based on 12 months in Korea. But because of the Constructive Months Service tally, used by the Army during hostilities but not by the Marine Corps, for the next year Army men are apt to come home more speedily than Marines. It could be that when Asst. SecDef John A. Hannah returns from a trip to the Far East, he will undertake new efforts to obtain a more uniform rotation program among the Services. Otherwise, there's likely to be some bad feeling if men of one Service get an appreciable rotation break over others in a sister Service.

THE SQUAWK BOX has been silenced in the office of the Army Chief of Staff. Gen. Ridgway has "deactivated" the device.

A FINAL DECISION on the proposed new issue uniform for Army EM is certain to be delayed until next year. The House Appropriations Committee indicated its approval of plans to eliminate the OD Eisenhower Jacket and substitute a dark green coat and "pinks" for EM but the Senate money group was less than enthusiastic. Consequently, the plan to switch uniforms has been held up. It's a reasonable bet that in the interim the Army uniform Board will keep the matter under continuing study, especially since a new Chief of Staff is involved. Throughout Army history, uniform changes have been among the touchiest problems of all.

THE NEW JCS CHAIRMAN, Adm. Radford gave the tip-off this week that there will probably be no wholesale revision of the Key West Agreement on roles and missions of the Armed Forces. He said that he thought this document, subsequently modified at the Newport, R.I., conference was "flexible enough" to take care of any changes which have occurred since 1948. It's recalled that Adm. Radford was a vocal participant in the Key West sessions. He emphasized, however, that he is eager to consider any proposals for changes. It could be, however, that SecDef Wilson will direct the JCS to come up with a new formal roles and missions statement as part of the "new look".

AIR FORCE PERSONNEL who were not enthused over Secretary Talbott's statements during budget hearings are elated over his speech to the Air Force Association convention in Washington, D.C., late last week. His remarks, made following trips which have taken him 70,000 miles to world-wide AF bases, are being interpreted as evidence that he will be a strong advocate during fiscal '55 budget talks for action to boost airpower and to raise career attractiveness.

NOT ONLY IN THE AIR FORCE, but in all the Services a closer "team" relationship has been developed during recent months among the civilian and military leaders. It's a healthy sign as the Pentagon chiefs prepare to wrestle with the formidable problem of adjusting defense requirements to defense spending.

OFFICERS

IF YOU'RE GOING OVERSEAS, OR IF YOU'RE ALREADY THERE

you'll appreciate the benefits to be derived from United Services complete low-cost, non-profit insurance program exclusively for armed forces officers. Either commissioned or warrant officers are eligible. More than 150,000 now are enjoying the protection of this 31-year-old institution. Through USAA, insurance coverage at minimum cost on automobiles, household and personal effects is made available in Japan, Western Europe, Puerto Rico and the Philippines, as well as in the States. Claims are quickly settled, even in out-of-the-way places. USAA is an organization of commissioned and warrant officers who pool their funds for mutual protection. Over the years, this plan has resulted in consistently large savings for members. In 1952, over 130,000 officers shared in $3,200,000 dividends returned to USAA policyholders. You, too, can save through membership in the USAA.

Weddings and Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Beatty, of San Diego, Calif., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Marie to 2d Lt. Richard Farrar, USAF. The wedding will take place in February following Miss Beatty's graduation from San Diego State College.

Lieutenant Farrar also was graduated from State College.

Miss Beatty is president of her Alpha Phi sorority and is member of Cap and Gown. Kappa Sigma is Lieutenant Farrar's fraternity.

SULLIVAN-ALLARD — Lt. Col. and Mrs. Henry W. Allard, USA-Ret., announce the engagement of their daughter, Julia Anne, to Lt. Robert R. Sullivan USAF.

Lieutenant Sullivan is the son of Mr. and Raymond G. Sullivan of San Francisco, Calif., and is stationed at Lowry AFB, Denver, Colo. He is under orders for overseas and will be stationed with USAF.

The wedding will be solemnized by a nuptial mass at 11:00 a. m. Saturday 12 Sept. at the Episcopal Church of St. Stephen, Protomartyr, Aurora, Colo., with the Rev. William Lloyd Goodrich officiating.

After a wedding trip to Salt Lake City, Utah and San Francisco, the young couple will return to Aurora where Julia Anne will remain with her parents until she can join her husband overseas.

SMITH-ANDREWS — Capt. and Mrs. Richard Stottko Andrews, USN, of Wilmington, N. C. and Burlingame, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter Dixey Anne to Dr. Richard Bembry Smith, Jr., of Hawkinsville, Ga., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bembry Smith of Hawkinsville.

Miss Andrews attended Colegio Northlands in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and was graduated from Salem Academy in Winston-Salem, N. C. She, also, attended William and Mary College in Norfolk, Va. and Mills College in Oakland, Calif., where she majored in Spanish. Miss Andrews was the Norfolk Camellia Queen in 1952.

The bride-elect's father, a Naval Academy graduate, is now, the District Intelligence Officer of the Twelfth Naval District with offices in San Francisco.

Dr. Smith attended Emory University in Atlanta, for pre-dental training. He received his D.D.S. degree at Northwestern Dental School in Chicago. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha social fraternity and the Xi Psi Phi professional fraternity. Upon graduation he practiced for three years in Hawkinsville before entering the Navy as a lieutenant. He was stationed at Parris Island, aboard the USS Mellette, and at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Yokosuka, Japan. Dr. Smith has now resumed his practice in Hawkinsville.

The plan to be married 30 Dec. at the First Presbyterian Church in Wilmington. They will make their home in Hawkinsville.

STEWART-ANDERSON — Miss Jean Carol Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Niles Milton Anderson of San Diego and Ray Simpson Stewart, son of Col. and Mrs. William R. Stewart of La Jolla, Calif., were married 25 July in First Presbyterian Church, San Diego.

Mrs. Jack Bates of Dallas, Tex., was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Anderson of Pasadena and Miss Joanna Wanamaker, cousins of the bride; Miss Liouose Lorraine of San Diego and Miss Jean McKee of New York City, classmates of Vassar College.

Santley Hays Stewart was his brother's best man. Ushers were Gordon Luce, Alan Reed, Thomas Thompson, Jr., and Harry Crosby.

The couple, now traveling in Europe will visit Mr. Stewart's brother, Maj. William R. Stewart, Jr., USAF and USMA '43 now with MAAG at The Hague.

The bridegroom M. S. Stanford '51, is great grandson of the late Senate, Judge and Col. Joseph Hays of Kentucky and grandson of the late William Ray Simpson pioneer settler in California.

WALKER-BADDOUR — Ft. Bragg's Main Post Chapel was the scene 19 Aug. of the marriage of Miss Mary Baddour, daughter of Mrs. Shickrey Baddour and the late Mr. Baddour of Goldsboro, N. C., to Maj. William L. Walker, son of Mrs. Clarence B. Walker and the late Mr. Walker of Tarentum, Pa. Chaplain D. F. Byrne, Catholic Chaplain, performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, Phillip Baddour, the bride wore a gown of rosepoint lace with pleated circular skirt. She carried a prayerbook bouquet of tuberose centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Walker attended the Women's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. For the past six years she has been secretary for the commanding generals at Ft. Bragg. She has been secretary to Generals John R. Hodge, S. Leroy Irwin, John W. Leonard, Thomas F. Hickey, and Wayne C. Smith.

Major Walker was formerly Chemical Officer of XVIII Airborne Corps. He is a former student at Maryville College in Tennessee and the University of Pittsburgh.

Major and Mrs. Walker will make their home temporarily at Ft. McClellan, Ala., where Major Walker will attend the 8th Advanced Chemical Officers' Course.

Weddings and Engagements

at the 7:30 P. M. ceremony held in the Walter Reed Memorial chapel in Washington, D. C.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white lace. Her fingertip illusion veil was attached to a lace and seed pearl crown. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Bernard Spahn of Washington was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Geraldine Weible and Miss Maxine Vincent of Washington.

Carl W. Raetzsch served as best man for his brother. Ushering were Alvin T. Raetzsch, brother of the bridegroom, and James Hays, brother of the bride.

Following the reception in the Walter Reed quarters of the bride's parents the couple left for a wedding trip to Canada. Upon their return they will reside in Washington.

The bride attended the University of Hawaii and Mount Vernon Junior College in Washington. The bridegroom attended Tulane University in New Orleans and was graduated from the University of Texas Medical School. Next May Lt. and Mrs. Raetzsch will return to Texas where he will practice medicine.

MALONE-McNULTY—Miss Ann Maureen McNulty, daughter of Mrs. Helen McNulty and the late Joseph M. McNulty of Brooklyn, N. Y., was married 8 Aug. to Lt. Paul Bernard Malone III, son of Col. and Mrs. A. J. Kerwin Malone of Sarasota, Fla.

The ceremony, a nuptial high mass, took place at Chapel No. 10, Ft. Campbell, Ky., Chaplain Zachary T. Ralston officiating.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Leo S. McGuire, the bride wore a white lace and illusion ankle-length gown. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a tiny pearl-banded hat. Her bouquet was of white roses.

Lt. E. S. Burkhard was best man and Mrs. Burkhard was the bride's only attendant.

On leaving the chapel the bride and groom passed under the traditional arch of sabers formed by six brother officers. A reception followed at the Officers' Club.

The bride attended Packer Collegiate Institute, Ladycliff College and St. John's University College. Lieutenant Malone is a graduate of West Point, Class of '52. Lt. and Mrs. Malone will visit his parents in Sarasota before leaving for his new assignment in the Far East.

Lieutenant Malone is a grandson of Gen. and Mrs. Paul B. Malone of San Francisco, Calif., and Mrs. Felix Emmanuelli of Sarasota, Fla., and the late Colonel Emmanuelli.

JOHNSON-STUBBS—Col. and Mrs. Marshall Stubbs of Alexandria, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Harriett Singleton, to Mr. David Carlyle Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Johnson of Liberty, N. Y.

Miss Stubbs is a graduate of Westhampton College of the University of Richmond, Va. She is now associated as District Director, with the Wyoming Valley Council Girl Scouts, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Mr. Johnson was graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1952 with a Master's degree in Chemical Engineering. He is now a research engineer in Schenectady, N. Y.

The wedding will take place in October.

WOLFSON-FISH—Miss Elizabeth Fish and Mast Folfson II were married at the home of her mother Mrs. Gregory Kreshover and Mr. Kreshover on Bel Estes Drive, Los Gatos, Calif., on 19 Aug.

"Bonnie" is the daughter of the late Lt. Col. James Fish, III, USA, who was killed at Attu. She was graduated from Mills College in Art. Her sister, Ballard, is now Mrs. Douglas Englehart.

Dr. Wolfson, who recently completed his studies in medicine at Stanford University, will go into the Service soon. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Wolfson of Monterey, Calif., who reside in the historic Borando Adobe.

ham of Great Bend, Kans. and Mrs. Lewis Leikam, Dodge City, Kans. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Meredith M. Hogue at the North Shore Presbyterian Church, in Milwaukee, Wisc. on 10 July.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Lucille Jeness was Maid of Honor and Miss Pauline Ecklund, Bridesmaid.

Attending the bridegroom were three of his classmates from Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Mr. Floyd Kraetsch served as Best Man with Mr. Ronald Allison and Mr. Carl Ryan serving as ushers.

The reception followed the ceremony and 120 relations and guests gathered to wish them happiness and Godspeed. The four-tiered wedding cake was cut with a historic saber loaned by Col. A. M. Mixson. Assisting hostesses were Miss Barbara Schmidt and Miss Katherine Porter, who poured, and Miss Shirley Cleverdon took charge of the Bride's Guest Book.

The young couple planned a four week motor trip to California for their honeymoon.

MONTGOMERY-YORK—Miss Sharon Lee York, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Frank E. York, of Dallas, Oregon and Chico, Calif. was married to 2d Lt. David F. Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Montgomery, Coraopolis, Pa., 15 Aug. at the Camp Tortuguero (P.R.) Chapel. The bride's father is the Company Commander of the Fifth Training Company at this post.

Chaplain (Maj.) Elie F. Delattre performed the ceremony of the military wedding which began at one P. M. and ended as the couple left the chapel under crossed sabres. Following the ceremony there was a reception at the Camp Tortuguero Officers' Club.

The bride, carrying an old fashioned bouquet of white orchids, was attired in a white cocktail-length dress with a mother-of-pearl-trimmed bodice, white shoes, and a Queen Elizabeth gown with a tiered veil. The groom wore his dress uniform.

1st Lt. Daniel J. Connelly was best man, and his wife, Mrs. Maxine Connelly, was matron of honor. First Lts. Wilbur J. Thiel, Harold L. Bank, Dean F. Schnoor, Edward J. Fox, John R. Hall, and Robert L. Lyons, were the ushers.

Lieutenant Montgomery arrived in Puerto Rico in January, 1953 and became the Committee Chief of the English Section. At the present time, he is chief of the Training Methods Committee, Leaders' Course. Miss York was graduated from Dallas, Ore., High School.

The newlyweds will reside at Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico.

LAYMAN-ST. JOHN—Margaret Evelyn St. John, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Clement St. John, of Silver Spring, Md., and Richard Paul Layman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Layman of Somerset, Pa., were married 22 Aug. at Walter Reed Memorial Chapel, Washington, D. C. Maj. Gen. Ivan L. Bennett, Chief of Army Chaplains, officiated.

The couple, after a reception at the Officers' Club at the Walter Reed Medical Center, left for a wedding trip at Farm on The Hill, Swift Water, Pa. They will reside in Philadelphia, where Mr. Layman will attend the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a wedding dress of Swiss organdy fashioned into a bouffant gown, trimmed in eyelet insertion which encircled the bodice and the tiers of the skirt which has a circular court train. A matching bandeau of organdy adorned with pearls and lilies-of-the-valley held the fingertip veil of French silk illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses and stephanotis. The church was decorated in palms and flowers.

The maid of honor was Miss Sonia Sandeen of Atlanta, Ga., former classmate of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Jane Collins of Rapidan, Va., and Mrs. Ronald Watson of Pittsburgh, Penn., both cousins of the bride.

Best man was Frank Lawman of Phoenix, Ariz., his brother. Ushers were Ronald Watson, Russel Van Ryn, and Herbert Layman, another brother of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and Western College, Oxford, Ohio. The groom was graduated from Pennsylvania State College.

FITZ-MITCHELL—At an afternoon ceremony in the Unitarian Church, Wellesley Hills, Mass., on 25 July, Miss Joyce Elizabeth Mitchell, daughter of Mrs. Marion Tilden Mitchell of Montpelier, Vt., and the late Lt. Col. Floyd A. Mitchell, became the bride of Mr. Robert LeRoy Fitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. LeRoy Fitz of Needham.

The bride was given in marriage by her godfather, Col. Benjamin S. Mesick, USA. A reception followed in the garden at the home of Col. and Mrs. Mesick in Watertown.

Miss Carolyn Jean Mesick of Watertown was maid of honor and only attendant.

WACO, TEX. One of the big hits at the recent talent show staged by the FlyTAF Officers' Wives' Club in Waco, Tex., was the schupplattler, a German folk dance, performed by Capt. and Mrs. C. J. Lindeman, staff officer at FlyTAF, and Capt. and Mrs. Britton.

Attired in German peasant costumes, the two couples went through the dance routine, which is the German equivalent of our square dance, to the delight of the audience. The

MRS. JOHN B. GILCHRIST, wife of Major General Gilchrist, USAF Director of Finance and former Commander of the Air Force Finance Center, was honored at a coffee pouring recently when members of the Air Force Finance Center Officers Wives' Club gathered at the Fitzsimons Army Hospital Officers' Club. After a brief visit in Denver and California, the Gilchrists returned to their home in Chevy Chase, Md. Shown here (left to right) are Mrs. Fred C. Baker, Mrs. Gilchrist, Mrs. Charles S. Marsh, President of the AFAC Officers Wives' Club, and Mrs. Richard L. Scott, wife of Brig. Gen. Scott.

Lindemans' learned the step during the three years they spent in Germany, and taught it to Capt. and Mrs. Britton just before the performance. Mrs. Lindeman is the former Pat Elliot, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter A. Elliot.

CARSWELL AFB, TEX. Formal ceremonies were conducted for the recently-opened new Airmen's Service Club. Col. John Samuel, Base Commander, selected A/1c Coleman Tally, 824 AP Sq., and A/1c Radonla N. Owens, 2048th AACs, to cut the ribbon which opened the club for business.

Highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Service Club Queen, Miss Jean Duke, who represented the 7th Field Maintenance Sq.

MATHER AFB, CALIF. Thirty-one members of the Education Workshop in Aviation, sponsored by department of Secondary Education, State of California, were guests of Col. Sam Maddux, Jr., base commander, on 21 Aug.

The educators were guests at luncheon in the officers mess and were taken on a tour of USAF Observer School facilities at the base.

Earlier in the day the colonel was a guest at the Workshop panel discussion on aviation subjects held at Coyote Point campus of San Mateo Junior College where the conference sessions are being held.

Educators from secondary schools in California are being equipped to spearhead a nation-wide movement for general aviation education in schools either as separate elective courses or integrated with courses now being taught in order that the student of today will fully realize the social, political, economic and military implications of aviation on the modern way of life.

BRONZE STAR FOR NURSE

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, MD. Capt. Josephine M. Gill, ANC, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal. Now serving at the Army Hospital here, she received the Bronze Star for meritorious service as General Duty Nurse and Assistant Chief Nurse in the 64th Field Hospital in Korea from 9 Jan. 1952 to 5 Feb. 1952 when she assisted in establishing and operating a 450 bed hospital annex to accommodate patients during a critical period of riots by rebellious prisoners of war.

Maj. Gen. Jonathan L. Holman, CG of APG, made the award to Captain Gill on 24 Aug. Also present at the ceremony were: Col. A. A. Hall, Surgeon; Col. Carl R. Dutton, Chief of Staff; Lt. Col. Hillas Brockett, of the Hospital staff and Maj. Mary K. Cuppy, Chief Nurse.

Chester Chastek, state director, US Selective Service.

Career Attractiveness "Difficult" Problem Confronting AF Says Secretary Talbott

The most difficult problem confronting the Air Force, in the opinion of Secretary Harold E. Talbott, is "the problem of people"—getting and keeping outstanding men as military careerists.

Secretary Talbott took the occasion of his address on 22 Aug. before the 1,000 delegates attending the Air Force Association convention in the Nation's Capital to speak out on the issue of Service Attractiveness. He pledged efforts "to improve the position of our men."

The following is the excerpt from the Secretary's address on this critical problem:

"American technology turns out the finest weapons in the world, but all of these must be operated and maintained by men. It will do no good to provide a supersonic jet bomber with a radius of 5,000 miles unless we are able to navigate the bomber to the target and, unless, once having reached the target, we are able to put our bombs on it. It does little good to have the finest air warning system and the finest all-weather interceptors unless we are able to maintain them properly and to have pilots trained to interpret their instrument panels for successful interceptions of enemy bombers entering our borders.

"The Army Air Corps in the 1930s had very little trouble getting sufficient men to meet its pilot training program. At that time the rates of pay of the military career compared favorably with the pay of civilians, and there were also 'fringe benefits'—retirement pay, commissary privileges, post exchange privileges—and even more important the high regard and general respect of the American citizen for the man in uniform. With today's intricate and delicate aircraft and equipment it takes a reasonably well-educated, smart, alert man a period of years to receive the training required to become effective and really do his job in the Air Force. Once having been trained at high cost to the taxpayer, a man's value to the Air Force increases with each year of service. The Air Force, however, along with the Army and Navy, is having more and more trouble obtaining and keeping high quality young men.

"Today we find a tendency to ridicule the military. We find responsible men in many walks of life applying the words: wasteful, stupid, incompetent, inflexible military mind—all indiscriminately to the man in uniform. The faults of the few have been applied to the many. These charges and actions have affected the military services in two ways: first, to a degree they have tended to undermine the morale of the man in uniform; and second, they have caused some American citizens to doubt the integrity and ability of our men in uniform. I can tell you that this attitude is wrong—very wrong. The men who make up our armed services are fine citizens who have dedicated their lives and talents to the service of their country. They are the ones upon whom our very lives will depend should war come. These men deserve the gratitude and respect of every American.

"Then there is the matter of pay. For instance, since 1937 the pay and allowances of our officers and enlisted men has fallen far behind the 315% increase achieved by labor. Even in Government I find that while all Civil Service employees received a pay increase in 1952, a similar increase was denied the military even though costs of living continued to rise.

"In addition to pay, in the area of fringe benefits—which is considered a part of the pay in the military service—we find a distinct change. In the 1930s every man in uniform, along with his family, was provided with adequate medical care. There has been serious doubt in recent years as to whether this practice should be continued, or whether just the man in uniform should be provided with medical attention. I personally think that if this government is willing to separate a man from his family and send him overseas for long periods, it should be willing to assist his dependents by providing them with decent care and attention.

"The commissaries are another example of a disappearing fringe benefit. The provisions of the Appropriations Act of 1954 will eliminate most of the commissaries in the United States.

"Post exchanges provide another example. In the 1930s they were exempt from national and local taxes. The military were able to make their low pay go further by buying in the post exchanges. Items were available at reduced rates without cost to the Government. While post exchanges have not been eliminated, prices are controlled, the number of items to be stocked today has been sharply reduced, and special purchases have been discontinued.

"The continued trend to take away traditional benefits to our men in uniform, especially in the absence of any pay boost comes as an actual reduction in pay. This trend worries me and causes real hardship to our men and their families.

"Housing is another great problem area—both for our families and for our single officers and airmen. The Air Force inherited many air bases built hurriedly during World War II with tarpaper shacks a standard item. These shacks had a life expectancy of some five years. Many of them have now been in use for 12 years. Last week in North Africa I found our men living in small wooden huts without insulation and without air conditioning in temperatures running above 120 degrees. In family housing, especially in isolated areas both in this country and overseas, the situation is not good.

"Several weeks ago I visited Limestone Air Force Base in northern Maine. The climate there is rigorous in the winter. We are building family quarters there—both from Government funds and through the provisions of the Wherry Housing Act—because the small local communities are incapable of absorbing the influx of Air Force personnel. I inspected the best set of quarters on the base—the home of the Base Commander. It consisted of a flat-roofed, square bungalow with no basement, no garage, no storage space. The children's toys had to be stored in the entrance to the living room. There was a small living room and dining room combination, a minute kitchen, and three small bedrooms with equally small storage closets in each. This home would be characteristic of the most modest housing development in the United States. Such a home is hardly a strong inducement for a man to aspire to as the Commander of a huge organization representing a quarter of a billion dollars in capital investment with all the responsibility that goes with this command. In industry a manager with comparable responsibility would fare infinitely better.

"I have gone into the reasons for the turnover in Air Force personnel in some detail because I am deeply concerned about the men in the Air Force. I must also consider the high cost to the Government when skilled men are forced to quit military service.

"It is estimated that in the next year the Air Force will lose 180,000 airmen by failure to re-enlist. The minimum cost of bringing each of these men into the service and training him in a particular skill is estimated at $14,600. The basic cost of replacing the 180,000 leaving us next year will be better than 2.6 billion dollars. Think of that 2.6 billions of dollars in one year. Many of these men could be saved for long, useful careers in the Air Force, the efficiency of the Air Force would be greatly improved, and the overall number of personnel in the Air Force reduced if we could just spend a portion of this 2.6 billion dollars for improving the pay and the 'fringe benefits' of these men. This trend to decrease pay of the military in the last few years is penny wise and pound foolish. I am determined to reverse this trend. Restoration of the various benefits would be a true economy.

"We are now studying this personnel problem, involving as it does the morale, the pay, and as a consequence the careers, of our men in uniform. We hope shortly to come up with a program, a program to improve the position of our men. Let us make service in the Air Force a career sought after and competed for by the best young men of America."

AF Assn. Calls For New Personnel Study

The Air Force Association late last week adopted a resolution calling upon the President to appoint a commission to study the problem of lowered morale in the Armed Forces.

The association statement said the commission's study "must place emphasis on weeding out the incompetents, and must establish personnel standards of the highest order." The following is the text of the AFA policy statement on "National Personnel Policies."

"Competent people are the basic requisite of our defense structure.

"The Air Force Association calls on the Administration, the Congress and the public to reaffirm their basic faith in the integrity, professional competence and dedication of the professional soldier. Unjustified criticism, arbitrary changes in economic conditions of service, and exaggerated charges of waste and inefficiency have undermined seriously the morale of the entire uniformed corps of officers and men, at a time when the morale, prestige and position of the military should be at its best. The Air Force Association calls on the President to appoint a commission to study this situation. The study must be objective and it must be detailed. It should pertain to civilians of the defense establishment as well as military personnel. It must place emphasis on weeding out the incompetents, and must establish personnel standards of the highest order.

"The Civil Service Commission has long

Admiral Radford's appraisal of the Service Attractiveness problem is concerned is the fact that he brings to Washington the viewpoint of men in the field.

Prior to assuming his new post, Admiral Radford was Commander-in-Chief Pacific and Commander Pacific Fleet.

His statement on Service Attractiveness followed by a week a similar statement made by Admiral Robert B. Carney, new Chief of Naval Operations, who came to Washington from duty as NATO commander in Southern Europe.

Admiral Radford said he was in full accord with the views expressed by his predecessor, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, who emphasized the need for improving Service Attractiveness in a letter to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The new JCS Chairman emphasized that Service Attractiveness is the "most essential problem we have today." He said he had no specific ideas to offer on the subject at this time, but it was evident the matter would receive close study by the JCS.

Admiral Radford contended that the problem goes beyond matters of pay, living conditions, separation of families, etc., and involves also what he called a "national attitude."

The JCS remarked that since WWII there has been a "down period" in prestige of a military career.

In response to reporters' questions, he attributed this partially to criticism in Congress and to the wide play given in newspapers to stories critical of the Service in comparison to those of a favorable nature.

stopped keeping pace with the times in its handling of professional, scientific and technical personnel in government service. The outstanding success of the Atomic Energy Commission in attracting competent personnel is largely due to its exemption from the Classification Act of 1923 and the Civil Service Acts. Air Force Association urges that serious study be given to extending similar exemptions to the military services.

"There is cause for serious concern that former officers or civilian employees of any one military service might be in a position to dominate continuously certain key positions in the Department of Defense structure. The Air Force Association does not question the motives of the individuals involved, and gladly acknowledges their dedication and applauds their courage. However, it is a regrettable fact that many Department of Defense decisions are made in an atmosphere of undue attachment to one service, and frequently in profound ignorance of the problems of other services. Air Force Association urges the Secretary of Defense to conduct an impartial, objective analysis of his staff, to insure that together they have a well-rounded familiarity with all aspects of all three services.

"The Air Force Association calls for the repeal of those provisions of the National Security Act of 1947 which prohibit transfer of officers between the three military services. Rather, the Secretary of Defense should be empowered to regulate such transfers in a manner which will insure optimum integration of the defense establishment and most effective utilization of its personnel resources.

"The Air Force Association believes that the military facts of life have made obsolete many of our present concepts for the organization and employment of reserve forces. The nation needs a new concept of reserve readiness. It must have the means to augment the strength of the regular establishment in hours rather than in months.

"The Air Defense of the North American continent for years to come, despite technological advances and automatic weapons, will constitute a heavy drain on the nation's manpower. This is especially true now that our air defense system must face the realities imposed by the Soviet possession of the hydrogen bomb. The continental air defense system will require a large variety of special skills—from conventional logistic and administrative duties to skills involved in the application of aircraft, electronic equipment and guided missiles to the system.

"The cost of manning this complex and extensive air defense system with regular Air Force personnel at a level of adequate readiness is almost prohibitive. Yet, our national survival is at stake. The reserve components can economically provide skilled technicians now available to the regular establishment only at great cost and thus greatly increase the readiness potential and endurance of the Air Defense Command. The Air Force Association urges an immediate study of this proposal."

M. D. degree from Ohio State University in 1912, and subsequently took post graduate training at the Army Medical School; and at the University of Pennsylvania in radiology under the late Dr. Henry Pancoast.

Colonel Moore began his military career in 1917 when he was commissioned a 1st Lieutenant in the Regular Army. A leading radiologist in the Army, he started his work in this field in 1919 and held posts as Chief of the X-ray and Radium Services at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., Gorgas Army Hospital, Panama Canal Zone, Tripler Army Hospital, Honolulu, T. H., and Brooke Army Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; and was instructor and head of the X-ray Department at the Army Medical School, Washington, D. C. During WW II, he established and commanded the Medical Department Enlisted Technicians Schools at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, and Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He was Commandant of the MDETS at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, Colo. when he retired for physical disability in September 1947 after over 30 years of service.

A military Requiem mass was held at the Post Chapel at Ft. Sam Houston on 3 Aug. Honorary pallbearers were Maj. Gen. Edward M. Noyes, MC, USA-Ret.; Brig. Gen. James P. Cooney, MC, USA; Brig. Gen. Oscar Snyder, DC, USA; Col. Prentice L. Moore, MC, USA; Col. Carl Ulsaker, Inf., USA-Ret.; Col. Clarence P. Canby, DC, USA; Col. Edward M. Wones, MSC, USA; and Lt. Col. Walter A. Kostecki, MC, USA.

Grave-side services and burial took place in the family plot in Fremont, Ohio.

Colonel Moore is survived by his widow, Mrs. Persis Moore, San Antonio, Texas; his daughter, Mrs. Barbara Holmes; and his mother, Mrs. W. O. Moore and a sister, Mrs. William E. Russell, both of Fremont.

Col. Parker G. Tenney, USA-Ret.

Col. Parker G. Tenney, USA-Ret., died in Edgartown, Mass., on 22 Aug.

Colonel Tenney entered the Army from the First Training Camp at Plattsburg in Aug. 1917. Before the war he had been a prominent football player at Brown University and North Carolina State.

His WWI experience was with the 77th Field Artillery, 4th Division, in the ranks of second lieutenant, first lieutenant and captain. At the end of the war, he served as one of the first language students to China, spending four years in Peking, and a year in Indo-China, Yunnan and Kweichow with a National Geographic expedition. From 1929 to 1932 he was Assistant Military Attaché in Peking.

He commanded the 2d Bn., 13th FA, at Schofield Barracks, and was Assistant to the Department Inspector General as World War II became imminent. The day of 7 Dec. 1941, however, found him in Letterman General Hospital, and although he subsequently served as Inspector General for the 10th AF in India, and commanded both Ft. Logan, Colo., and Jefferson Barracks, Mo., he never regained his health. He entered the hospital preparatory to retirement in Nov. 1943.

A member of the Explorers' Club of New York City he had lived in Palm Beach, Fla., and Edgartown since his retirement.

He is survived by his widow, the former Eleanor Havens Anthony of Leavenworth, Kans., a son, Dudley B. Tenney of New York City, and a daughter, Phyllis Tenney Dowd of Arlington, Va.

Col. Henry T. Cherry, jr., USA

Col. Henry Thomas Cherry, jr., of Macon, Ga., a much-decorated career Army officer of 18 years' service and son-in-law of a retired major general living in San Antonio, Tex., died at Brooke Army Hospital on 19 Aug.

As a second lieutenant, he served with the First Cavalry Division when it was "horse cavalry" and he was just graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1935. After completing the Cavalry School Regimental Course, he was assistant superintendent of the student cavalry school and in 1943 was a Gold Star graduate of the Command and General Staff College.

For extraordinary heroism against the armed enemy, Colonel Cherry was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. He was commanding the Third Tank Battalion of the 10th Armored Division under the Third Army engaged in the siege of Trier, Germany. Ordering a smoke screen to obscure the vision of hostile anti-tank gunners, he mounted a light tank and personally led a surprise attack which was instrumental in accomplishing the fall of the city.

The Silver Star Medal was awarded Colonel Cherry three times in a five-months' period for gallantry in action. Once, under heavy fire from the enemy, he rescued a wounded officer in imminent danger of being killed. Again, he personally engaged an enemy group with sub-machinegun and pistol, giving his troops an opportunity to organize against the surprise attack. The third time he reconnoitered a route and led his troops around an enemy roadblock.

When Colonel Cherry returned to the U. S. from duty with the Army of Occupation in Germany, he commanded the Armored Detachment at the U. S. Military Academy for two years, was a student at the Army War College and then served in the Department of the Army before entering Walter Reed Hospital in January of this year as a patient. On 27 March he came to Brooke Army Hospital as a patient.

His widow, Mrs. Suzanne Swift Cherry, and their two children, Henry Swift, 14, and Suzan Palmer, 4, are, at present, staying with Mrs. Cherry's father, General Innis P. Swift (Ret.) at 826 Burr Rd., San Antonio. Colonel Cherry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Cherry, 158 Culver St., Macon, Ga.

Mr. W. W. Smith, USNA '02

The surviving members of the Class of 1902 greatly regret the passing of Classmate W. W. Smith in Los Angeles on 13 Aug. 1953 after an illness of several days caused by a heart attack. Rear Adm. Robert Henderson and Comdr. George P. Brown represented the Class of 1902, accompanied by a "Shipmate" of the Class of 1901, Capt. Benyaud B. Wygant, USN, Ret. The funeral services were conducted at Santa Monica with interment later at Arlington National Cemetery. The popular and highly esteemed "Willie" resigned in 1914 when he joined the Federal Shipbuilding Corporation, until his recent retirement from the high position of Chief Engineer. Mr. Smith and his wife recently purchased a permanent home in west Los Angeles, where Mrs. Smith will continue to reside at 11355 Farlin St. The class will remember with affection its popular and highly esteemed classmate, with special gratefulness to him as the designer of the class ring, and for his many artistic sketches in the Class "Lucky Bag" for 1902.

The total value of the equipment and installations contributed by the Air Guard approximated $500,000,000. These contributions to the U. S. Air Force of units, men and equipment reflect the judgment and soundness of the United States' investment in the Air National Guard.

The National Guard Bureau requested and Congress provided an appropriation of $147,100,000 for the Air National Guard during Fiscal Year 1954. These funds will provide for the rebuilding and further development of an Air National Guard capable of fulfilling our Nation's ever-increasing need for a ready reserve trained and ready for immediate call to action against an aggressor at home or abroad.

All of the 22 Wings with their tactical groups and squadrons which were called into active military service have returned to their respective states, with the exception of approximately 19 support units. These units will return to state control by December 1953.

The appropriation is calculated to provide for the support and equipping of the Air Guard's 27 Wings, comprising 559 units during the current Fiscal Year.

A Force in Being

The mission of the Air National Guard is a vital one, and one tremendously important to the security of our nation in an era when an aggressor force can strike so quickly and devastatingly. In the event of future emergency the United States must have, in the Air Guard, a military force trained, equipped and ready for immediate action. It is designed to provide a balanced force in being, to support and augment the Regular Air Force, and be ready for employment on a phased schedule.

In the fiscal year ending 30 June 1953, the Air National Guard almost doubled its strength to more than 35,500 officers and men. The figure on 30 June 1952 was 14,888.

The current program calls for a strength of approximately 53,000 officers and men by 30 June 1954, including approximately 2,500 pilots. We are confident, from past experience, that there will be no difficulty in reaching this programmed strength goal. Experience in previous years has demonstrated that the several states and territories have never failed to attain their planned strengths.

The Air National Guard's master construction program provides for the rapid conversion to jet type aircraft. It is contemplated that during the present fiscal year the majority of the tactical squadrons will be jet-plane equipped. Air Guard units returned from active duty without equipment. Currently they have approximately 65 per cent of required items of equipment and this is expected to be raised to approximately 85 per cent by the end of FY 1954. Under present policy ANG units are being equipped only with essential training equipment.

Operates 79 Fields

The Air National Guard will maintain and operate 132 facilities, including 79 flying fields. A number of permanent training sites have been spotted around the country for field training and other exercises to reduce the amounts of equipment required in Air Guard units and to facilitate tactical movement.

Basic need of the Air National Guard is a continuing flow of young pilots. Under current arrangements with the Regular Service, approximately 750 pilots will be trained by the U. S. Air Force and returned to their Guard units as second lieutenant pilot officers.

The Korean emergency proved that a strong, well-equipped and manned Air National Guard is vital to National security. And in cooperation with the Regular Air Force, the Air National Guard will continue a 100 per cent volunteer organization of citizen soldiers—to contribute to the defense and security of our nation.

25,000TH AIRPLANE—Col. Harrison R. Thyng, (center), deputy chief of staff, operations, for the Western Air Defense Force, takes delivery for the Air Force of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's 25,000th airplane—an F-94C Starfire jet interceptor. Burt C. Monesmith, (right), vice-president and general manager of Lockheed's California division, officially turned over No. 25,000 to Colonel Thyng at Van Nuys, Calif., airport. On hand to assist in the ceremony was Grace Boeckmann, (left), the company's honorary "Starfire girl." Colonel Thyng is one of five Air Force pilots credited with five or more aerial victories in both World War II and Korea.

Name Gen. Crawford

Maj. Gen. Alden R. Crawford, USAF-Ret., was named this week to be general manager of Republic Aviation International at Lugano, Switzerland.

His appointment was announced there by Mundy I. Peale, chairman of the overseas subsidiary of Republic Aviation Corp., Farmingdale, N. Y.

General Crawford, USMA '23, retired recently as a staff member of the U. S. European Command at Frankfurt, Germany.

In his new post, General Crawford will coordinate the manufacture of spare parts for Thunderstreak F-84 jet fighter-bombers to be used by the member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Republic Aviation International has an agreement with the U. S. Government under the NATO offshore procurement program to subcontract to European aircraft companies the manufacture of $50,000,000 worth of Thunderstreak spare parts. The first subcontract was recently awarded the French firm, Societe Nationale de Constructions Aeronautiques du Sud-Est, and other contracts are to be negotiated with companies in several European nations.

Jet Engine Test Plant

The Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics has authorized immediate construction of a jet engine components test facility in North Perry Township, Ohio, adjoining Lake Erie.

A total of $1,286,000 has been allocated to purchase land and construct and equip the new plant, which will be built and operated for the Navy by Thompson Products Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio. A contract for the construction was signed last week by the Bureau of Aeronautics following approval by the Senate Armed Services Committee of the land purchase.

The new facility, which will be designated a Naval Industrial Reserve Aircraft Plant, will be used to evaluate new engine materials, components and accessories. Materials to be tested will include those designed for higher temperature usage in jet engines undergoing laboratory development.

Any jet engine now in production or in the process of development can be handled at the new facility, the Navy said. The Thompson company is one of the largest subcontractors making jet-engine compressors, turbine wheels, nozzle guide vane assemblies and fuel pumps for the aircraft industry.

AF Decorates Three Civilian Air Leaders

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott presented Exceptional Service Awards to three prominent aircraft manufacturers at the Air Power Symposium luncheon in the Presidential Room of the Hotel Statler on 21 Aug. The award is the highest civilian decoration given by the Air Force for non-combat service.

Recipients of the award were: Donald W. Douglas, President of the Douglas Aircraft Co., Santa Monica, Calif.; James H. Kindelberger, Chairman of the Board of the North American Aviation Corp., Los Angeles, Calif., and Frederick B. Rentschler, Chairman of the Board of the United Aircraft Corp., East Hartford, Conn.

Each received an engraved medal, a citation with the Secretary of the Air Force seal, and a certificate signed by the Secretary of the Air Force.

The luncheon was part of the seventh annual national convention of the Air Force Association, held in Washington, D. C., 20 to 23 Aug.

The citations read:

"Donald Wills Douglas distinguished himself by rendering exceptional service to the United States Air Force and his country through his contribution to the development of military and civilian aviation over the past 40 years. From our first bomber, the famous Martin GMB to the B-66s and C-124s of our present day, his designs have been known for their durability, safe performance and easy maintenance. As the founder and director of one of the world's largest aircraft companies, he has long been recognized as our foremost designer of civilian and military air transport frames. The soundness of his technical skill is best illustrated by the DC-3 (C-47) which he produced over 20 years ago and which unquestionably ranks as the best single airplane ever built. Practically every transport pilot today served his apprenticeship on this beloved aircraft, which is still in wide use as a military and commercial transport—a phenomenal record considering the strides aviation has taken in the past generation. This country's leadership in the air has been made possible through the genius of men who, like Mr. Douglas, have provided the aviation industry with such remarkable technical and executive skill."

"James Howard Kindelberger distinguished himself by rendering exceptional service to the United States Air Force and his country for 40 years as an engineer, designer, and producer of military aircraft. His name is synonymous with air power. As one of the small band of American pioneers who has fought for the development of air power through the years, his accomplishments stand out in military aviation progress from the Jenny to the Jet. He has no peer as a designer and producer of air frames for fighter aircraft. By applying scientific manufacturing techniques, he revolutionized the aviation industry. His ability to translate the most exacting requirements of the USAF into mass-produced, yet precision operated aircraft was particularly reflected in the combat performances of the F-51, Mustang fighter, and the B-25 Mitchell attack bomber, among the best airplanes produced in their respective classes during the last war. More recently, the North American F-86 Sabrejet has distinguished itself in Korea as the principal United Nations' plane to accept and throw back the challenge offered by the MIG-15 to our air superiority over the battlefield. Our country is indebted to Mr. Kindelberger for his outstanding contribution to the development of the United States Air Force from its modest beginning to its present role of this nation's first line of defense."

"Frederick B. Rentschler distinguished himself by rendering exceptional service to the United States Air Force and his country over the past 40 years as a pioneer in the development, research and manufacture of aircraft engines. During World War II, when airplane engines designed and built under his supervision powered no less than 45 different airplane types, the name of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company which he founded came to symbolize power and reliability for thousands of our young airmen. In the post war period, he has not rested on his laurels and the fact that the United States has been able to recover lost ground in the field of jet propulsion is in no small measure due to his foresight, skill and technical knowledge. Today, Pratt and Whitney engines continue to power the B-50 and B-36 of our strategic striking force, and our future intercontinental bomber, the B-52, will depend on the J-57 engine to carry it at high speeds over vast distances. Mr. Rentschler's technical and executive skill is unique. Our country is indebted to Mr. Rentschler for his outstanding contribution in providing the United States Air Force with the power plants needed to fulfill its role as this nation's first line of defense."

Lt. Gen. Lemnitzer Serves On Army Org. Committee

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens has named Lt. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Research, to serve as the only military member of a committee which will study the organization of the Department of the Army.

The committee will recommend to Secretary Stevens by the end of the year steps which should be taken to improve the Army's organization "under today's conditions."

Creation of the committee, which will hold its first meeting on September 18, is in line with the President's Defense Reorganization message of 30 April.

In addition to General Lemnitzer, other members of the committee are: Harold Boeschstein, president of Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corporation, Toledo, Ohio; Paul L. Davies, president, Food Machinery and Chemical Corporation, San Jose, California; Irving A. Duffy, vice president, Ford Motor Company, Detroit, Mich.; C. Jared Ingersoll, chairman of the board of the Kansas, Oklahoma & Gulf Railway Company, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Maj. Gen. Parks Given Second Army Command

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Army Chief of Information, was named this week by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens to command the Second Army at Ft. Meade, Md. The new post will mean his promotion to lieutenant general.

At the same time, Secretary Stevens announced that Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Acting Chief of Army Forces since 30 June when General John R. Hodge retired, will be Field Forces Chief at Ft. Monroe, Va.

Gen. Parks

Lt. Gen. I. D. White, former CG of the X Corps in Korea who previously had been named to become Second Army CG will instead become Fourth Army CG at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., about 1 Oct.

General Parks was to take over his new command this week.

He will be succeeded 1 Nov. as Chief of Information by Maj. Gen. Gilman G. Mudgett, Deputy Chief of Staff, Far East Command.

Since the departure of General Dahlquist for Ft. Monroe, command of the Fourth Army has been in the hands of Maj. Gen. Hayden L. Boatner.

The Second Army has been commanded since retirement on 30 April of Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks by Maj. Gen. Leslie D. Carter, who will go to the Far East Command at the end of August.

GENERAL DAHLQUIST, an infantryman, commanded the 36th Infantry Division during the assault on Southern France in August 1944. He led the division through the battles of Montelimar and the Vosges Mountains, and during the crossing of the Moselle River and the penetration of the Siegfried Line. General Dahlquist's division ended the war in the Austrian Tyrol. After the war, General Dahlquist served in Washington as a member of the Secretary of War's Personnel Board and as Deputy Director of Personnel and Administration. Later, on occupation duty in Germany, he commanded the 1st Infantry Division and the V Corps.

GENERAL WHITE was identified with the 2d Armored Division from 1940 through its entire period of combat in World War II, advancing from battalion commander to command of the division itself. After the war, he served as Commandant of the Cavalry School at Ft. Riley, Kans., which was redesignated the Ground General School. Returning to Europe in 1948, he commanded and reorganized the United States Constabulary. Before assuming command of the X Corps in Korea, he served as Deputy Commanding General of the Seventh Army in Europe, Chief of Staff of the First Army, Governors Island, New York, and Commanding General of the Armored Center and Commandant of the Armored School at Ft. Knox, Ky.

GENERAL PARKS was Chief of Staff of the Army Ground Forces, Assistant Division Commander of the 69th Infantry Division and Chief of Staff of the First Allied Airborne Army in World War II. After the cessation of hostilities, he became commander of the First Airborne Army and Commanding General of the United States Sector, Berlin District. He served as Chief of the Public Information Division, War Department, from January 1946 until August 1948, when he was appointed Deputy Commander, U. S. Army, Pacific. He returned to Washington in 1949 as Chief of the Public Information Division and was named Chief of Information, his present post, 1 Mar. 1950.

Gen. Shambora Brooke C.G.

Maj. Gen. William E. Shambora has taken over as commander of the Brooke Army Medical Center, Tex., relieving Maj. Gen. Martin E. Griffin, CG of Brooke Army Hospital, who has commanded the center since the departure for Europe last month of Maj. Gen. Joseph I. Martin. General Shambora had been Surgeon of the U. S. Army Forces in the Far East since Nov. 1951.

Select 149 as Captains; 25 Are Naval Aviators

The Navy has announced the selection of 149 Line officers, including five Reservists, for promotion to captain.

Of the Regular officers, 17 were selected from above the promotion zone, and the remainder were selected from within the zone. Thirty-two officers were passed over for the first time and 26 others were passed over the second time.

Unrestricted Line officers, including all of the Reservists, numbered 112. Restricted Line officers numbered 37, including 12 AEDOs, 14 EDOs and 11 SDOs. Twenty-five are Naval Aviators.

The ages of the officers selected range from 38 through 51, with the majority (100) falling into the 40-42 bracket. One hundred four members of the USNA Class of 1935 were selected, and 18 (including 12 pick-ups) were named from the Class of 1934.

Among the officers named was Comdr. Eli Thomas Reich, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor. Decorations held collectively by the others include 25 Navy Crosses, 20 Silver Stars, 11 Legions of Merit, five Distinguished Flying Crosses, one Navy-Marine Corps Medal, 29 Bronze Stars and one Air Medal.

All promotions for those selected will be made by 1 July 1954, the Navy said. The first 50 on the list (extending down through Comdr. Richard B. Lynch) have been ordered to take their medical examination, and the Navy said it is anticipated that about 15 will be promoted as they qualify. Dates of rank, 1 July '53.

Pentagon May Modify Manpower Cuts

return early next month from a trip to the Far East.

The Defense Department already has under study detailed recommendations made by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens following his recent inspection trip to Japan and Korea.

Secretary Stevens is known to have submitted strong arguments against any reduction in Army strength in the Far East at this time.

It is obvious that thousands of troops would of necessity be lost to the Far East Command if the Army were to drop all the way from its current strength of about 1,525,000 to the 1,412,000 in the budget presented by Secretary Wilson.

The only alternative to a heavy loss of personnel in the Far East would be to take a corresponding number of men away from Army units in the ZI and in Europe.

ZI Strength

Army units in the United States cannot be tapped too heavily, since with the current imbalance in the disposition of Army troops—namely, more are overseas than in the ZI—an adequate replacement and ready reserve base is essential.

As for Europe, any suggestion of heavier Army cuts in that area would certainly bring dire warnings from NATO military commanders and from Assistant Defense Secretary Frank C. Nash, responsible for International Security Affairs.

Military officials maintain it is unthinkable in light of the current military and political situation as regards Korea to reduce strength there.

With the formal political talks destined for complications from the outset, these experts insist that any cut in the size of our military forces in Korea would play into the hands of the Communist negotiators—not to mention, of course, the urgent requirement of continued strength in face of the ever-present military threat of the Red forces.

"Korea Package"

So, it now has become a serious question at the Pentagon whether the Army can be slashed by at least 100,000 officers and men, or by the additional 51,000 in the so-called "Korea Package" mentioned by Mr. Wilson in his budget testimony.

The first evidence of any wavering at the Defense Department level in the drive to cut military manpower was evidenced during a 22 July press conference held by Dr. Hannah.

His remarks relate to the situation in the Air Force, which was slated for a personnel increase in the Truman Administration budget to 1,061,000 and which received a reduction to 970,000 in the Eisenhower Administration budget.

Air Force Problems

Present strength of the Air Force is about 975,000.

At the late July press conference, Dr. Hannah revealed that the Air Force would be required to take all of the ROTC graduates, whose call to active duty the Air Force wanted to defer.

Dr. Hannah added:

"If the Air Force makes the heroic efforts I am sure they are going to make, and if we find that this poses a problem that they can't get over, then, of course, we are going to have to do everything that we can do to help them with the problem."

Dr. Hannah said the problem confronting the Air Force also is "my problem. It is not a situation where we say 'Now, you people solve it.' If they do the best they can," said the Assistant Secretary, and "they take the steps that have been outlined, and if it can't be done within this procedure, and they have still a little overage, then we are going to see if we can't bail them out."

The significance of Dr. Hannah's promise was sharpened when Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott late last week told the Air Force Association convention in Washington, D. C., he was "glad to state that it will not be necessary to cut as deeply as was originally thought necessary."

This could indicate that Secretary Talbott, taking a cue from Dr. Hannah's remarks, has submitted a reclamation against slashing Air Force strength as much as was first indicated.

Marine Corps

In the Marine Corps, a serious personnel situation also threatens, particularly as a result of the transfer of the 3d Marine Division from the U. S. to the Far East. This means that two of the Marine Corps' three divisions are overseas, which adds to the need of pipeline personnel.

The Marine Corps now has about 260,000 officers and men and, according to the budget estimates related by Secretary Wilson, is due to drop to 230,000 men, with another cut of 5000 "if hostilities cease."

Marine Corps authorities are worried that the 230,000 man objective would not provide adequate manpower resources to maintain a satisfactory rotation program for the two divisions overseas and still insure readiness of a mobile, hard-hitting force in the U. S.

Of all the Services, the Navy appears to be in the best shape personnel-wise. Its present strength is about 792,000, with the fiscal year-end goal established at 745,000.

In the weeks immediately ahead, a collision is certain at the Pentagon and the Bureau of the Budget as perturbed officials bring together data concerning current reduction-in-force programs, worldwide military commitments, arguments of such Service leaders as Secretaries Stevens and Talbott, force requirements advocated by the new JCS and the implications of the Soviet hydrogen bomb explosion with the energetic drive for economy and the National Debt ceiling.

Equalize EM Promotions

Army officials said this week that effective 1 Sept. all enlisted personnel will be considered on the same basis insofar as promotions are concerned.

Heretofore, troops of the Eighth Army in Korea have received consideration for advancement under liberalized policies.
